SIXTEEN IN RIOT CASE ARE FINED

Eller Henchmen Found Guilty of Election Violence

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Sixteen henchmen of Morris Eller, political boss of the "Bloody Twentieth" ward, were found guilty here today of election violence committed during the April state primary.

The verdict required fourteen hours deliberation by a jury in Judge John M. O'Connor's criminal court.

Only one defendant, Joseph "Peppi" Genaro, escaped conviction. Genaro was found not guilty on all counts of the indictment returned against him and other Eller aides by a special Cook County grand jury.

The sixteen men were assessed fines ranging from $400 to $1,250. Eleven fines of $400 were assessed.

Harry Hochstein, chief lieutenant of the Eller 20th ward organization, was fined $1,000; Sam Kaplan another Eller lieutenant, $1,250, and Abe "Humpty" Klass, Eller kinsman, $1,000.

The following were fined $400 and $500: James B. Leonardo, state senator; Peter Pacelli, former city policeman; Benjamin Jacobson, aldermanic candidate; Sam Bardin, bailiff; Eddie Brownstein, Morris Brownstein, precinct workers; Joseph Breclav; Sam Pellar; John Armando; Rocco Panelli; Albert Braverman, and Aubrey Reed.

Morris Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, indicted with their aides, were granted separate trials. They now are fighting trial with the defense that their indictment was illegal in that it was returned by a special grand jury when the regular grand jury was in session.

The indictments cited various charges of violence including the primary day murder of Octavius Granady, negro candidate for war committee, and numerous kidnappings, sluggings, and vote frauds.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—As police of Lakewood prepared today to arraign John J. Vay, 37, a chemical engineer, on a charge of maiming his former wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Hull, 27, was fighting in a hospital here to retain her sight.

Her face, hands and chest were badly seared by acid which police say was thrown by her former husband as she approached the home of her father, David B. Hull.

Physicians said there was hope of saving her eyes, but that her face probably would bear the scars of the burns for life. She is the mother of two small girls.

The Eastern was enroute from New York to Norfolk with a barge and eleven men on board when the distress calls were sent.

CHIEF LENGEL REINSTATED COLOMBIA FLYER BEGINS LONG GOOD WILL FLIGHT TO BOGOTA

FAR ROCKAWAY NAVAL STATION, L. I., Nov. 23.—Lieut. Benjamin Mendez, American trained pilot of the Republic of Colombia Air Corps, took off at 7:33 a. m. today in the Curtiss "Falcon" seaplane "Ricarte," on the first leg of a 4,600-mile good will flight to Bogota.

He was accompanied by John Todhunter.

Lieut. Mendez' flight is made under the auspices of his government and is felt to be a replica of the South American flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Numerous popular subscriptions had been raised for the flight as a goodwill venture between the republics of South America.

The flier carried a small box which was born by Capt. Emilio Carranza, Mexican good-will flyer, on his fatal flight some months ago.

They expect to reach Jacksonville, the first stop, in nine hours. Lieut. Mendez took messages of good will from Dr. Enrique Olaya, Colombia minister at Washington, to the American minister at Bogota and also a greeting from Mayor James J. Walker to Mayor Jose M. Piedrahita of Bogota, as well as other expressions of international goodwill.

His flight is described as having a three-fold purpose—to intensify Colombian national interest in aviation; to direct national attention toward the excellence of American-made aircraft; and to promote good will between Colombia and the United States for the welfare of both.

EX-CANTON POLICE HEAD WINS BATTLE TO REGAIN OFFICE

Order Will Permit Him
Pension And His
Back Pay

CANTON, O., Nov. 23.—Former Police Chief S. A. Lengel who was one of the principal figures in the investigation of the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, was ordered re-instated today by Common Pleas Judge W. M. Stephenson.

Judge Stephenson's order resulted from a writ of mandamus filed by Lengel a year ago, Lengel claiming he was removed from office on "insufficient grounds."

Lengel was tried, convicted, and served five months in the state penitentiary in connection with Mellett's death.

Mellett was shot to death in 1926, as the climax of an anti-vice crusade he carried on through the columns of the news. Lengel subsequently was arrested and charged with conspiracy.

Judge Stephenson's order, in effect, would permit Lengel to resume his position immediately. It was understood, however, that Lengel, if reinstated, will resign, his friends declaring he instituted the mandamus action so that he will be eligible to a police pension for the remainder of his life.

Lengel has passed the retirement age and under the court's reinstatement order can claim back pay, retroactive to the date he was removed from office.

He also would be entitled to a pension.

Lengel was tried twice. The first jury found him guilty but after serving a short term he was granted a new trial.

The second trial held at Lisbon, resulted in a directed verdict of not guilty. This was brought about when Floyd Streitenberger, a former member of the police department, refused to reiterate testimony he gave at the first trial.

Streitenberger was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment along with Pat McDermott and Ben Rudner. McDermott was charged with being the "trigger man" in the killing.

A fifth man involved, Louis Mazur, turned state's evidence and was sentenced to five to twenty years.

Lengel is sixty years old and was within eleven months of retirement on pension when he was ousted on charges of malfeasance in office, neglect of duty and failure to act in bringing Mellett's murderers to justice.

His back pay will aggregate $5,000.

REPORT REVOLT IN MARCH ON SOFIA

BELGRADE, Nov. 23.—The Macedonian revolutionist leader Vantcha Michaeloff has threatened to lead Macedonian freebooters on a march against Sofia, it was reported here today, unless Bulgarian authorities annul repressive measures against Macedonians.

Unconfirmed reports from Bulgarian border sections, stated that clashes have occurred between rival Macedonian factions—followers of the assassinated Protogeroff and adherents of Michaeloff.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A dispatch received here at 10:30 today from the United Press correspondent in Sofia said that reports of uneasiness in the city were false and that calm prevailed throughout the Bulgarian capital.

FOUR ROB BANK
AND GET $18,000

TRAFFORD CITY, Pa., Nov. 23.—The First National Bank of Trafford City was held up by four men early today and robbed of a reported sum of $18,000. The robbery occurred shortly after the bank had opened.

LAUNCH PROBE OF FATAL EXPLOSION

BARBERTON, O., Nov. 23.—Officials of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here today launched an investigation of a tank explosion yesterday which cost the life of one man and resulted in the injury of seven others.

Of those injured, three were in a critical condition today, although physicians expressed the belief they would recover. The others were sent to their homes.

The men were working in the process room of the chemical division of the plant when the tank let go. A deluge of raw ammonia swept down upon the men.

Harold C. Shaw, 31, was fatally injured. Those seriously hurt were Louis Reis, 43; Paul Underwood, 43; and Frank Gerbeck, 52.

Company officials had newspaper men and photographers who attempted to "cover" the explosion, ejected from the plant grounds.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 23.—East Cleveland's popular dramatic farce, "The Lady vs. the Traffic Cop," was not ended today, although Miss Edith B. Schmuck stood convicted of assault and battery on Patrolman Charles P. Burns, who attempted to arrest her Nov. 2, for jaywalking.

Miss Schmuck said she would fight the conviction to the court of appeals in case Police Judge Stanton Adams refused her a new trial.

Judge Adams deferred sentence at the conclusion of the trial, after a jury of five women and seven men had brought in a verdict of guilty.

"But I will congratulate the jury on its verdict," the court said, "and I take this occasion to rebuke the defendant for her flagrant disregard for the traffic laws that protect our children, and her reprehensible conduct in slapping Patrolman Burns. If she were a man, I would not hesitate to send her to jail."

A crowded courtroom heard Patrolman Burns and nine supporting witnesses tell how Miss Schmuck crossed the street against a red traffic light, and of what followed.

The audience heard of rights and lefts to Burns' face dealt by Miss Schmuck, of a forcible knee to the patrolman's abdomen, and of an apparent that twice knocked the officer's cap from his head.

CHEST NEEDS $6,000 MORE, THIRD DAY'S WORK NETTED $1,603

Subscriptions Of A n y
Size Acceptable Says
Chairman

Gaining impetus on each of the three days of the campaign, Xenia Community Chest workers moved up a total of 312 subscriptions for $3,995 when they made their report early Friday morning.

Thursday's report netted 147 new subscriptions amounting to $1,603, the second largest daily total of the three days.

With approximately two-fifths of the quota obtained, workers Friday to make extra efforts, catch up with their work in other respects.

Exactly $6,005 is needed to reach the goal of $10,000.

Answering questions concerning the campaign cost, L. H. Zeu, general chairman of the drive, declared that the cost of the chest campaign has been estimated at 3 per cent of the amount raised. In other years the overhead cost of campaigns for individual agencies was much higher.

"The Community Chest is not a charity. It is a distributing and co-ordinating agency," he said.

Least Xenians get the idea that only large subscriptions are sought, however small, will be welcome, because it will show that the donor is taking an active interest in the furtherance of charity in Xenia.

Too many persons have the idea that large gifts only are acceptable, according to Chairman Zeu. "This is all wrong. We want gifts of any size. Some people think that because they cannot give a large amount, they should not give a small sum, commensurate with their ability, because of the contrast between their gift and the larger ones. This is entirely the wrong attitude.

People to be interested in this campaign and in a gift of any size will show their interest."

THE DUKES OF YORK, second son of the king, returned to London today from Northampton to be near the bedside of his father who is ill with a severe cold and congestion of the lungs.

The duke left London last night to join the Duchess of York and the baby Princess Elizabeth at Naseby Hall. About noon, Lord Dawson, of Penn, physician extraordinary to the king and Sir Stanley Hewett, surgeon apothecary to the king, issued a bulletin indicating that the king's illness had taken a turn for the worse. The trend of the king's condition was described as a "slight extension of the mischief in the king's lungs."

The two physicians visited the king at Buckingham palace last night and made bacteriological investigations which were described as "habitual in all cases of microbial infection."

Both returned to the palace about 10 a. m. and after an examination, issued their bulletin. It said:

"The king passed a restless night, his temperature remaining at 101. There was a slight extension of the mischief in the lungs, but his majesty's strength is being maintained."

"Signed: Stanley Hewett, Dawson of Penn."

Within the royal household there appeared to be complete calm and the routine of the palace seemed to be carried on in its usual quiet, unpretentious way.

Except for the sudden return of the Duke of York, nothing at the palace would have indicated that anything out of the ordinary was happening.

Queen Mary entertained the Earl of Athlone, governor general of South Africa, and the Countess Athlone at dinner last night. They left after the dinner for Southampton to sail for South Africa. With them when they departed were their daughters, Lady May Cambridge and Princess Sibylla of Saxenburg-Gotha.

The name of Lady May has frequently been linked with gossip of a possible marriage with her cousin, the Prince of Wales. As his wife she might be the next queen of England.

The Prince of Wales, for whom the cry of "the king is dead, long live the king," will next be uttered throughout the British empire, is now at Dodoma Center, a white settlement in the Tanganyikan highlands in dark Africa. He is on a goodwill tour of his father's African dominions. So far as is known, the prince still lacks knowledge of his father's condition. It being argued that too hasty news might unduly alarm him.

King George was reported resting comfortably today.

A third physician was called in to consultation at the palace at midnight and he conferred with the king's medical staff, Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson, of Penn.

Queen Mary, accompanied by the Duke of York, yesterday performed two ceremonies on behalf of the king who was compelled to cancel the engagements. The queen opened a new extension of the Spitalfields market and dedicated and restored Old Hall, of Lincoln's Inn.

The Daily Mail said it understood the king's condition was not considered sufficiently serious to necessitate special messages to his three sons, in foreign lands.

The Prince of Wales is in South Africa on a hunting expedition. He is the Duke of Gloucester. Prince George, serving as a naval lieutenant, is stationed on board the H. M. S. Durban, now at Bermuda.

It was thought that the king's indisposition came as a result of long armistice day services in which he participated.

HOOVER SEEKS COOL SPOT; PREPARING SPEECHES TO COME

President-Elect Swelters
As Ship Hits
Tropics

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MARYLAND, AT SEA, Nov. 23.—Awaiting over the spacious quarter-deck of the Maryland sheltered President-elect Herbert Hoover today as he sought a cool spot to prepare his Latin American speeches.

The entire party was getting its first taste of the tropical sun as heat hung oppressively about the big battleship.

The rollers in the printing shop melted in the heat and publication of the ship newspapers was held up until the rollers were hardened again in the refrigerators. Hard-hearted sailors of the Maryland's crew said, concerning the heat:

"You ain't seen nothing yet."

Last night, deck coats were distributed to members of the Hoover party and everyone slept on deck—the heat below was intense.

Rugged and mountainous, the coast of Mexico was visible most of the day, and Mrs. Hoover who sat knitting on deck, often went to the ship's side and scanned the barren mountain ranges, exclaiming over the beauty of some snow-capped peak rearing itself miles behind the coast ranges. Now and then a lonely boat was visible.

Mrs. Hoover was an amused spectator at deck golf games which were played throughout the day by many of the party and she applauded vigorously the skill of Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, who joined in the play.

Hoover had completed some of his addresses, it was understood, and all of them probably will be brief. After dinner last night the president-elect relaxed and the entire party enjoyed the moving pictures. "Ben Hur" was shown at Hoover's special request.

Plans for Hoover's welcome at Corinto, Nicaragua, were taken up and they included a welcome by an official party after the president-elect leaves the dock at Corinto. The welcome group will include, according to radio advices, President Diaz and President-elect Moncayo.

On his visit to Guayaquil, Ecuador, it was announced that Hoover would take a small vessel sixty miles up the river.

"If these charges are true, it means that the whole system is criminally wrong. That goes much further than the captain or owners of the Vestrils. It applies to all ship companies. It reveals the inadequacy of national laws and international regulations...."

LAUNCH PROBE OF FATAL EXPLOSION

BARBERTON, O., Nov. 23.—Officials of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here today launched an investigation of a tank explosion yesterday which cost the life of one man and resulted in the injury of seven others.

Of those injured, three were in a critical condition today although physicians expressed the belief they would recover. The others were sent to their homes.

The men were working in the process room of the chemical division of the plant when the tank let go. A deluge of raw ammonia swept down upon the men.

Harold C. Shaw, 31, was fatally injured. Those seriously hurt were Louis Reis, 43; Paul Underwood, 43, and Frank Gerbec, 52.

Company officials had newspaper men and photographers who attempted to "cover" the explosion, ejected from the plant grounds.

EX-CANTON POLICE HEAD WINS BATTLE TO REGAIN OFFICE

Order Will Permit Him
Pension And His
Back Pay

CANTON, O., Nov. 23.—Former Police Chief S. A. Lengel who was one of the principal figures in the investigation of the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, was ordered re-instated today by Common Pleas Judge W. M. Stephenson.

Judge Stephenson's order resulted from a writ of mandamus filed by Lengel a year ago, Lengel claiming he was removed from office on "insufficient grounds."

Lengel was tried, convicted, and served five months in the state penitentiary in connection with Mellett's death.

Mellett was shot to death in 1925, as the climax of an anti-vice crusade he carried on through the columns of the news. Lengel subsequently was arrested and charged with conspiracy.

Judge Stephenson's order, in effect, would permit Lengel to resume his position immediately. It was understood, however, that Lengel, if re-instated, will resign, his friends declaring he instituted the mandamus action so that he will be eligible to a police pension for the remainder of his life.

Lengel has passed the retirement age and under the court's re-statement order can claim back pay, retroactive to the date he was removed from office.

He also would be entitled to a pension.

Lengel was tried twice. The first jury found him guilty but after serving a short term he was granted a new trial.

The second trial held at Lisbon, resulted in a directed verdict of not guilty. This was brought about when Floyd Streitenberger, a former member of the police department, refused to reiterate testimony he gave at the first trial.

Streitenberger was convicted and was sentenced to life imprisonment along with Pat McDermott and Ben Rudner. McDermott was charged with being the "trigger man" in the killing.

A fifth man involved, Louis Mazur, turned state's evidence and was sentenced to five to twenty years.

Lengel is sixty years old and was within eleven months of retirement on pension when he was ousted on charges of malfeasance in office, neglect of duty and failure to act in bringing Mellett's murderers to justice.

His back pay will aggregate $5,000.

REPORT REVOLT IN MARCH ON SOFIA

BELGRADE, Nov. 23.—The Macedonian revolutionist leader Vautcha Michaeloff has threatened to lead Macedonian freebooters on a march against Sofia. It was reported here today, unless Bulgarian authorities annul repressive measures against Macedonians.

Unconfirmed reports from Bulgarian border sections, stated that clashes have occurred between rival Macedonian factions—followers of the assassinated Protogeroff and adherents of Michaeloff.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A dispatch received here at 10:30 today from the United Press correspondent in Sofia said that reports of uneasiness in that city were false and that calm prevailed throughout the Bulgarian capital.

FOUR ROB BANK AND GET $18,000

TRAFFORD CITY, Pa., Nov. 23.—The First National Bank of Trafford City was held up by four men early today and robbed of a reported sum of $18,000. The robbery occurred shortly after the bank had opened.

The board of directors of the bank was empowered to look into the problem and decide whether the time is now ripe to ask the legislature to amend or repeal the law.

The question was brought up by L. F. Dick, Martins Ferry, who declared that his city was among scores of others in Ohio where a militant minority succeeded in keeping theaters closed in the face of a disorganized majority.

A crowded courtroom heard Patrolman Burns and three supporting witnesses tell how Miss Schmunk crossed a street against a red traffic light, and what followed.

The audience heard of rights and lefts to Burns' face dealt by Miss Schmunk, of a forcible knee to the patrolman's abdomen, and of an apparent that twice knocked the officer's cap from his head.

Refused her a new trial. Judge Adams deferred sentence at the conclusion of the trial, after a jury of five women and seven men had brought in a verdict of guilty.

"But I will congratulate the jury on its verdict," the court said, "and I take this occasion to rebuke the defendant for her flagrant disregard for the traffic laws that protect our children, and her reprehensible conduct in slapping Patrolman Burns. If she were a man, I

VICTIMS OF OMAHA AXE SLAYER

With three persons dead, two wounded, one probably fatally, Omaha, Neb., police have been conducting a man-hunt for an axe slayer who has terrorized the city with his crimes. Top photos show Mrs. Harold Stribling, Harold Stribling and their baby, Mollie, attacked by the slayer as they slept. Stribling, suffering from a fractured skull is not expected to live. Mrs. Stribling saved herself and baby by entreaties after the man had struck her a glancing blow with his axe. Below are, left, Creda Brown, 18, and Mrs. Gertrude Resso, 21, both dead after being hacked by the slayer in Mrs. Resso's home. Joseph Blackman, 75, an expressman, was the first victim of the slayer.

COLUMBUS PHYSICIAN HEADS CONSULTING STAFF AT HOME

Doctors Examine Children And Inspect New Hospital And Other Buildings At Institution; Thirty One Seated At Annual Banquet.

Dr. Cassius M. Shepard, Columbus, O., was elected dean of the Medical and Surgical Consulting Staff of the O. S. and S. O. Home at the annual banquet-meeting at the institution Thursday.

Dr. Shepard succeeds Dr. John E. Greive, Cincinnati, diagnostician, who has served in that capacity for the last two years. Dr. A. C. Messenger, this city, recently-appointed director of health at the Home, was re-elected secretary of the medical staff for a second year.

Four new members were elected to the staff at the business meeting in the morning. They are: Dr. Greime Mitchell, Cincinnati, head of the Pediatrics Foundation; Dr. A. C. Bachmeyer, Cincinnati, head of the City Hospital and dean of the Medical College; Dr. J. W. Stewart, Dayton, orthodontist, and Dr. Walter M. Simpson, Dayton, pathologist and recognized as the highest authority on pathology in the Miami Valley.

Members of the medical staff held a clinic in the morning, examining nearly forty Home children for cases of eye, ear, heart and lungs, skin, mental and orthopedic trouble.

The staff also inspected the new hospital, nearing completion, and was addressed by Robert S. Harsh, Columbus architect, who drew plans for the building. Mr. Harsh explained plans for the development of the hospital. Members of the staff heard various committee reports and participated in general discussions.

It was disclosed that the new hospital will be formally dedicated with appropriate exercises next spring, probably in May. The new "woman's building" and "men's hall" are also nearing completion.

The appropriation for the hospital, which will accommodate sixty-seven beds, is $100,000. The building is designed to care for the routine dispensing work, major surgery, all necessary laboratory work, X-ray examinations, physiotherapy, etc.

CHEST NEEDS $6,000 MORE; THIRD DAY'S WORK NETTED $1,603

Subscriptions Of A N y
Size Acceptable Says
Chairman

Gaining impetus on each of the three days of the campaign, Xenia Community Chest workers routed up a total of 312 subscriptions for $3,995 when they made their report early Friday morning.

Thursday's report netted 147 new subscriptions amounting to $1,603, the second largest daily total of the three days.

With approximately two-fifths of the quota obtained, workers expected to make extra efforts Friday to see prospects and catch up with their work in other respects. Exactly $6,005 is needed to reach the goal of $10,000.

Answering questions concerning the campaign cost, L. H. Zen, general chairman of the drive, declared that the cost of the chest campaign has been estimated at 3 per cent of the amount raised. In other years the overhead cost of campaigns for individual agencies was much higher.

"The Community Chest is not a charity. It is a distributing and co-ordinating agency," he said. "Lest Xenians get the idea that only large subscriptions are sought, it was announced that any donation, however small, will be welcome, because it will show that the donor is taking an active interest in the furtherance of charity in Xenia."

Too many persons have the idea that large gifts only are acceptable, according to Chairman Zen. "This is all wrong. We want gifts of any size. Some people think that because they cannot give a large amount, they should not give a small sum, commensurate with their ability, because of the contrast between their gift and the larger ones. This is entirely the wrong attitude. We want the people to be interested in this campaign and in a gift of any size will show their interest."

CONGESTED LUNG IS REPORTED; DUKE OF YORK RETURNS HOME

British Ruler Has Restless Night; Temperature 101.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Duke of York, second son of the king, returned to London today from Northampton to be near the bedside of his father who is ill with a severe cold and congestion of the lungs.

The duke left London last night to join the Duchess of York and the baby Princess Elizabeth at Naseby Hall. About noon, Lord Dawson, of Penn, physician extraordinary to the king and Sir Stanley Hewett, surgeon apothecary to the king, issued a bulletin indicating that the king's illness had taken a turn for the worse. The trend of the king's condition was described as a "slight extension of the mischief in the king's lungs."

The two physicians visited the king at Buckingham palace last night and made bacteriological investigations which were described as "abnormal in all cases of microbial infection."

Both returned to the palace about 10 a. m. and after an examination, issued their bulletin. It said:

"The king passed a restless night, his temperature remaining at 101. There was a slight extension of the mischief in the lungs, but his majesty's strength is being maintained."

"Signed: Stanley Hewett, Dawson of Penn."

Within the royal household there appeared to be complete calm and the routine of the palace seemed to be carried on in its usual quiet, unpretentious way.

Except for the sudden return of the Duke of York, nothing at the palace would have indicated that anything out of the ordinary was happening.

Queen Mary entertained the Earl of Athlone, governor general of South Africa, and the Countess Athlone at dinner last night. They left after the dinner for Southampton to sail for South Africa. With them when they departed were their daughters, Lady May Cambridge and Princess Sibylla of Saxe-Coburg Gotha.

The name of Lady May has frequently been linked with gossip of a possible marriage with her cousin, the Prince of Wales. As his wife she might be the next queen of England.

The Prince of Wales, for whom the cry of "the king is dead, long live the king," will next be uttered throughout the British empire, is now at Dodoma Center, a white settlement in the Tanganyika highlands in dark Africa. He is on a goodwill tour of his father's African dominions. So far as is known, the prince still lacks knowledge of his father's condition, it being argued that too hasty news might unduly alarm him.

King George was reported resting comfortably today.

A third physician was called in to consultation at the palace at midnight and he conferred with the king's medical staff, Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson, of Penn.

Queen Mary, accompanied by the Duke of York, yesterday performed two ceremonies on behalf of the king who was compelled to cancel the engagements. The queen opened a new extension of the Spitalfields market and dedicated and restored Old Hall, of Lincoln's.

The Daily Mail said it understood the king's condition was not considered sufficiently serious to necessitate special messages to his three sons, in foreign lands.

The Prince of Wales is in South Africa on a hunting expedition as is the Duke of Gloucester. Prince George, serving as a naval lieutenant, is stationed on board the H. M. S. Durban, now at Bermuda.

It was thought that the king's indisposition came as a result of long armistice day services in which he participated.

STATE INSURANCE CHIEF RESIGNS

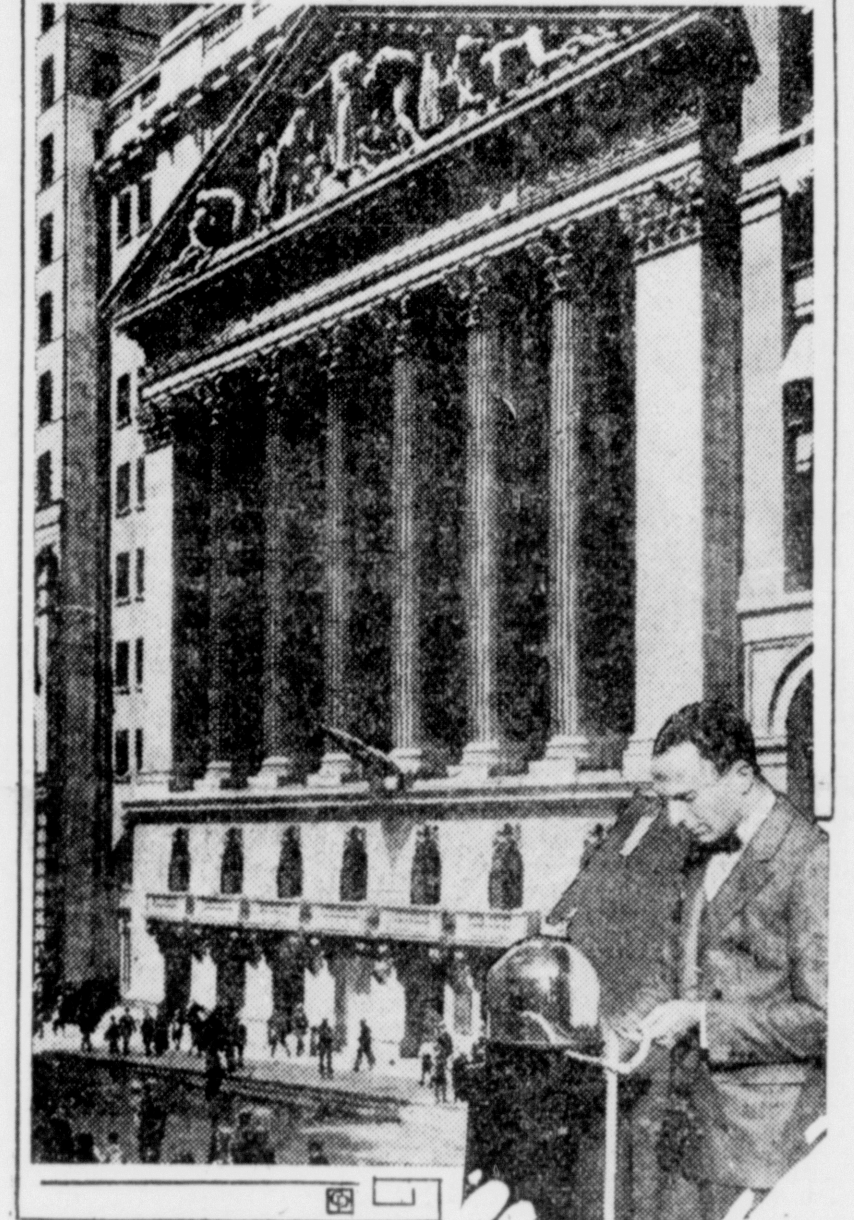

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23.—Instead of waiting for the change of administrations January 14, William C. Safford of Columbus has resigned as superintendent of insurance, effective December 15.

Safford is to become vice-president and manager of the American Liability and Surety Co., of Cincinnati. He was to have gone to Cincinnati to company upon the appointment of his Republican successor.

William A. Doody, Safford's assistant, also is expected to join the same firm as attorney after the Republicans take office. Doody may succeed Safford for the one month.

C. S. Younger of Celina is being talked of as insurance head of the new administration. He has been an attorney assigned to the department from the attorney general's office for several years. He was formerly assistant to the superintendent.

BREAKING TRADING RECORDS DAILY

A view of the New York Stock Exchange in Wall street, center of the nation-wide speculation in stocks, which in a succession of better than 5,000,000-share days, has swamped the facilities of the exchange, causing the ticker to run from one to three hours behind the market. NEW MARITIME REGULATIONS MAY RESULT FROM DISASTER

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—A new system of maritime regulations probably will be reared upon the sunken hull of the Lamport and Holt liner, Vestril.

As the two investigations into the sinking of the vessel that cost 114 lives went grinding on today it was apparent that the public and press had recovered from the first shock of the disaster. What people want to know now is, how can the chances of similar tragedies be lessened?

Editorials in New York newspapers are chiefly concerned with the winnowing of facts out of the great mass of contradictory testimony that has been offered in the two investigations.

Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York has announced he favors a senate investigation to map out maritime safety measures.

One attitude of the press is reflected in an editorial in the New York Telegram. After referring to an article written by Charles Johnson Post, marine expert, in which he said "ship owners are the worst perils of the sea," the telegram said:

"If these charges are true, it means that the whole system is criminally wrong. That goes much further than the captain or owners of the Vestril. It applies to all ship companies. It reveals the inadequacy of national laws and international regulations...."

UP AGAIN!

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—New York Stock Exchange seats went to a further record high today when arrangements were made for the sale of a membership for $550,000, an increase of $20,000 over the previous record high made yesterday.

CONDEMNED MAN TO FILE NEW APPEAL

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 23.—Attorney for John Bradshaw, Columbus negro, condemned to die in the electric chair at the state penitentiary here for the murder of Katie Young, is expected to appeal to the supreme court. The appellate court confirmed the verdict of a lower court in fixing date for execution. Bradshaw is scheduled to die January 11. The crime was committed last February 25.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 23.—Irma Ward, widely known as the "world's strongest woman," broke her own record here last night by chinning herself 110 times. She formerly was attached to Sells Floto Circus. She hangs from a ring by her right arm and twists her body as she raises and lowers herself.

A tender and thrilling romance was woven into the marriage of Byrd Hamilton and Larry Rivington. They spent the night at the Blackstone, in Cincinnati, where Larry's friends were giving a party in their honor. Larry's friends, who had seemed so distinguished a few hours before, had lost some of their glamour. Byrd felt a deep sympathy for Margy Duncan, who had struggled along in poverty, raising her three little children, without her husband's love or cooperation. Chet Everson, a friendly sort of person, tried to help Byrd through a difficult evening, while he wondered how the speech-loving Larry happened to marry this little puritan.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER V

The racket was increasing. A piano was playing somewhere, and a victrola and a radio had combined to drown it out. The result was a cacophony of discord that rent the air like music suddenly gone mad. A musician's nightmare! And everywhere people were moving back and forth, intent only on getting more drinks. Suddenly Byrd found herself alone. She realized there certainly was a deficiency, a certain lack, in her behavior, for every man drifted away from her in search of more exciting fields of entertainment.

It was all perfectly horrible, and she decided to look up Larry and tell him that she wouldn't stand it another moment.

A half dozen people whom she hadn't met at all were tearing through the length of the apartments, playing some sort of game. As far as she could understand the meaning of it, they were trying to catch a little brunette, with the idea of removing part of her clothing.

"You said you couldn't dance in skirts, so you'll have to take 'em off!" shouted a young, silly-looking man, racing pell-mell into one room and out of another. He motioned Byrd to join the chase.

In another group, a girl had the stage of the "crying jag" and was weeping on every and all shoulders that would stop long enough to sustain her woe. In one hand she was carrying one shoe, hobbling along on one stockinged foot.

"I can't find it anywhere," she blubbered. "Someone's thrown it into the rubbish."

"What have you lost?" asked Byrd, kindly, thinking that it was too frightful that no one would help her.

"Why—I've lost my shoe and no one'll help me find it," she wailed. Just then Chet came up, and Byrd and he joined in the general laughter.

"She's lost her mind, too, I'm thinking," he said to Byrd. And perhaps her happy hour. Her husband's furious with her. Told her if she didn't sober up immediately he'd divorce her. Isn't that just like a man drunk to the gills himself?"

"What did she say to that?" asked Byrd.

"She said she'd never forgive him as long as he lived, unless he apologized for an 'an' and 'some'." Byrd couldn't help joining Chet in laughter.

"Aren't they a scream when they're like that?" he asked, wiping his eyes.

"Not at all!" said Byrd, with a hard little edge to her voice. "They're terrible! And they start quarrels which I suppose takes weeks to make up—and all about nothing."

"Yes, sometimes. That's my experience, too. But most of the time they're just funny, and trying so hard to have the time of their lives," he said, charitably. "You'd have a little more fun, too, if you drank along with us. Just a little to help take off the blue glasses and substitute the rose-colored ones."

"I don't think I ever can," said Byrd. Byrd decided to change the subject. Here was the first man she had been able to talk to sensibly.

"Are you in Larry's office, too?" she asked.

"I'm working in a bank, First National. Five years and I'm not president yet!" He grinned at Byrd amiably.

"I just love banking myself. You see, I worked two summers in my father's bank in Jacksonville. Father thinks I'm a born accountant."

Suddenly she heard low laughter and Larry's voice, pleading, tense, magnetic, at her elbow.

The window had been opened wide to relieve the fetid, tired air, streaked with cigarette smoke, and the mixed aroma of human beings and heavy perfumes which twined like ribbons of gauze through the atmosphere. From behind the heavy, brocaded hangings at the window came the low hum of voices, now cajoling, now teasing, now debating.

India and Larry were perched knees to chin on a window sill, which was wide enough to make quite comfortable but very dangerous seats.

Somewhat the idea of Larry sitting there, where one little, unconscious movement might send him headlong, paralyzed Byrd. She must warn him.

On some pretext, she must get him out of there.

"I'm going to take your advice, Chet." She brought out his name hesitatingly. "Is it terrible for a married woman to call a young man whom she has just met by his first name?"

"Sounds wonderful to me, Byrd," he laughed.

"Well, I've changed my mind, and I'll take a highball. Will you get it for me?" Byrd smiled at him, archly, but all the time her thoughts were behind those curtains.

Yes, indeed, she'd be a good sport, even at the risk of bringing Larry's anger down upon her head, but not to please Larry, was she being one.

"A good sport—" she mused to herself.

The voices behind the hangings had suddenly stopped. Then India's nervous words jangled against her ears.

"That little wife of yours, oil can, may not smoke or vamp, or even chew tobacco, but you're wrong about her not drinking. I just heard her ask for a highball."

"She's afraid I might push her husband out of the window."

Suddenly, without warning, Byrd slipped inside the curtains. India looked up at her blankly, then her face assumed a slightly mocking expression. She continued that low, rather remarkable laughter that had the strange, musical quality of an oboe in it, with beautiful, minor nuances running up and down like the chromatic scales.

Byrd saw her for the first time as a very attractive creature, one of those slim, Cleopatra-like types, intensely alive and mobile, with smoldering eyes that gave proof of the fire which was backed underneath the embers. Her nose spread eager nostrils over a red mouth. And they called her "Wildcat."

It suited her. Vivacious, stormy, listless, scornful, a hundred moods to tantalize her victims. Byrd found herself staring at her openly.

Byrd suddenly realized that she was standing there, white, stricken, tongue-tied, unable to tell them why she had entered this way. A jealous wife they were thinking, her head was whirling, and she was petrified at the temerity, at her "nerve" in rushing in upon them.

"Oh Larry!" Byrd suddenly found her voice. She seized his hand in hers. "I really wasn't watching you, but I heard your voices, and suddenly realized how dangerous it was for you to sit on this ledge with the window open."

Suddenly India's loud, strident laughter broke shockingly over their heads. People turned to look. People came to see what was the matter.

"Why, she's afraid I might push her husband out of the window," India laughed again, unrestrainedly, helplessly, cruelly.

"Larry," said Byrd, desperately. "You know that isn't true! You know that I was only thinking that and accident might happen to both of you. I wasn't eavesdropping—"

Byrd was almost in tears.

Larry looked at her coolly. Why she was afraid I might push her husband out of the window."

India laughed again, unrestrainedly, helplessly, cruelly.

"Larry," said Byrd, desperately.

sky, from one end of the horizon to the other. Like a flashlight from an enormous camera, the world seemed to have gone up in smoke. It had been wiped out in a single blaze.

Then, after a century had passed, she seemed to float up to the light from the darkness below. She saw the room again, and Chet coming toward her with a highball.

Dazed, she walked toward him. He saw her groping toward him. "Now, child," Chet admonished her, suspecting by her pallor and the dead look in her eyes that something had happened, "don't let anything that happens to night worry you. Particularly Larry. Remember, this is his wedding day and India's taking it rather hard."

Byrd smiled weakly. "Not any harder than Larry," she said.

"Brace up, old sport," said Larry, tucking her hand under his arm. "You've just got to be a good sport."

"I'll murder, in cold blood, anybody who uses that expression in my presence again," said Byrd, almost savagely. As Chet appeared about to speak, she put her fingers to her ears.

"Tell me what you're going to say before I'll listen to you," she said.

"Tomorrow, I'm going to give that young man a good old talking to," said Chet, in his most paternal manner.

"If Larry hadn't been in that condition, he wouldn't have talked to me like that," said Byrd, already defending him. "Won't you help me get him down to our rooms?"

"You bet I will. I'm going to get you another highball to steady your nerves," and was back immediately. "Look at the mob around that bar. It's like a water-hole where all the animals come to drink."

"Come on, Byrd, drink this down like a good—well, it'll make you sleep like a log." Their eyes wandered in the direction of the window. "I'll send him down as soon as I can, and in the meantime, I'll keep a protecting eye on him. Count on Count Montecristo!"

Byrd flashed Chet a grateful smile. She stood sipping the glass he had brought her until it was almost empty. The room became a little indistinct, and she was feeling drowsy.

The cool air of the corridor felt good on her hot temples. Chet unlocked her door and turned on the lights for her. She waved unsteadily toward one of the beds.

"Shall I call a maid to help you undress?"

"Gosh I undressed myself before Gosh I can do it now," Byrd said, somewhat thickly. Chet said good night, and closed the door, advising her to lock it.

As Byrd crawled uncertainly into bed, laying her golden head upon the white pillow, she slipped almost at once into oblivion, and her last conscious thought was that somewhere a crowd was celebrating something, an important occasion.

VARIOUS and sundry motor fuels have been designed for quick starting in cold weather. But to retain in such fuels the usual reserve power and mileage at high temperature of the motor was considered next to impossible.

Yet that is exactly what has been accomplished in Loreco 88. After the motor has warmed up, Loreco 88 goes right on delivering full power and mileage at high speed.

SICK 11 YEARS; FINDS HEALTH IN MODERN KONJOLA

Kidney Trouble and Nervousness Disappear Like Mist Before Sun When New Medicine Comes.

No matter how long the suffering, forget what medicines and treatments have failed, for in Konjola, the new medicine, is a world of hope for all who suffer and who may have the fear that there is no relief in sight.

MRS. JESSIE STAFFORD

E. Main St.

Strange, but true, Konjola, with its thirty-two ingredients, twenty-two of which are the juices of roots and herbs, triumphs in the most stubborn cases that have thwarted every attempt at relief. How this wonderful medicine works in this remarkable way is being explained by the Konjola Man, who is at the Gallaher drug store, 33 East Main St., where he is meeting daily those who suffer and who would be well again. As the fame of Konjola spreads, the throngs increase, so eager are they to learn all about this master medicine that is making such an unparalleled success wherever known. Just a few days ago Mrs. Jessie Stafford, R. R. No. 1, Xenia, beaming with happiness and joy over her experience with this modern medicine, said to the Konjola Man:

"What a joy it is to endorse this marvelous Konjola. You may imagine my happiness to escape from pain and suffering after being a victim for eleven years of kidney and stomach troubles and chronic constipation. As a result of these painful ailments my nerves were shattered. I could not sleep, for no sooner would I fall asleep than I would have to get up, often as many as six times a night. I had to take laxatives almost daily, and finally even the strongest of these failed to work. My food did not agree with me, and I could gain no strength because what I ate did not digest properly, and did me little good. During these eleven years I never let up seeking something to help me. But nothing touched the source of my ailments. To say that I was disheartened and discouraged is putting it mildly.

"A friend recommended Konjola, and she was so enthusiastic about the new medicine that I started the treatment. Five bottles did the work; rid me of the ailments that had clung tenaciously to me all these long years. From the very beginning of the treatment I began to feel better, and one by one my pains and symptoms vanished. Now I can eat whatever I like; I can sleep the night through, and my bowels act as they should. As the poisons are out of my system and as my food is digesting as it should, I am feeling simply wonderful and gaining strength day after day. My nerves have been calmed and soothed and I find myself wondering if I am the same woman who suffered so just five weeks ago."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no pre-digesting chemicals, yet it soothes the nerves, drives away pain, eradicates the cause of the disease and builds up the system after new and glorious health has been restored.

The Konjola Man is at the Gallaher drug store, 33 E. Main St., Xenia, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the making and merits of this amazing medicine.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

FALSE CONFIDENCE—For thou hast trusted in the wickedness: thou hast said, None seeth me. Thy wisdom and thy knowledge, it hath perverted thee; and thou hast said in thine heart, I am, and none else besides me.—Isa. 47:10.

LOSING BILLION TO CROOKS

Americans, who generally pride themselves on being the most money-wise people on earth, will lose more than a billion dollars through worthless investments in 1928.

Moreover, 80 per cent of such worthless investments are sold by mail to people who know nothing about the reputations of the sellers and who fail to take the only precaution necessary by asking the advice of their own bankers.

This is the situation revealed by Paul Tomlinson, financial expert, in an article in The Elks Magazine.

There are hundreds of reliable banking and investment houses which continually send out investment literature and offer their securities by mail, Mr. Tomlinson points out, but these are always anxious to have the prospective purchaser investigate their standings and many even urge it.

But that gullible portion of the public which sinks $800,000,000 yearly in worthless and frequently fraudulent, investment schemes apparently gives up its money without ever inquiring whether the seller is the most reputable house in Wall street or a fly-by-night outfit whose only assets are a few desks and a mailing list.

And the gullible ones, Mr. Tomlinson finds, are not the widows and orphans who are usually victimized by the crooks of fiction stories, but many men who are successful in their own businesses or professions, otherwise intelligent artisans and others who have had the benefit of a thorough education.

If people would only take the trouble to find out about the houses they are dealing with by mail, the worthless ones would soon die out from lack of patronage. If they would follow this plan the problem of fake securities would solve itself automatically.

HUMAN TIGERS RAVAGE SOCIETY

In 1916 a criminal was sent to a western penitentiary for robbery and attempted murder. Shortly afterwards he was transferred to an asylum for the insane.

He was promptly returned to the prison, as being the proper place for him. Here he proved himself so "hard-boiled" that he was again transferred, this time to another penitentiary designed for the most recalcitrant and dangerous criminals.

A short time ago he was released, having served his sentence. He had, in the eyes of the law, "paid his debt to society."

Now he is again in a jail for shooting a druggist during a hold-up he committed. When arrested, he was in possession of a stolen automobile, and he "shot it out" with the police.

Society has no means for identifying and heading off in advance the human tigers as it has for the jungle beasts. But once the felons have disclosed themselves it is neither humane to the criminal nor fair to decent people to take all restraint off one who has proved himself too much for prison.

There is little wonder that we have dismally failed in preventing crime when such episodes as this can occur.

Why should a known criminal be set free to ply his trade on an unprotected public. Is it any wonder that the criminal regards law and order as something of a joke, that but seldom reacts upon himself?

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

THROUGH THE SKY

Many fascinating changes are ahead. One of them is teaching by radio. Broadcasting of lessons to school children has one weakness. Knowledge cannot be pumped into anyone. Education cannot be acquired like taking on ten gallons of gasoline at a filling station. The best education system is the one which gives preparation for life by contact with life.

CRASH SURPLUS

European visitors to this country comment on the number of automobile accidents. At home, they say, conditions are different. There the careless motorist who causes death in an automobile accident can himself be put to death. The guilty motorist also is forced to pay all of the expenses of the injured growing out of the accident, including funeral and burial services. The careless motorists who cause accidents seldom can avoid prison sentences there.

America has too many traffic crashes. We would do well to consider the way of our European friends.

SILLY SCIENCE

The English scientists who worry over what is going to happen to the moon a million years from now are silly. They are on a par with the American professors who spend many hours daily playing bridge.

Much more sensible was the scientific conference on coal held in Pittsburgh, November 19. The list of ways in which coal can be utilized to make man happy continues to grow.

COMES BACK

Italy, without capital punishment for 40 years, decides it is necessary and condemns the slayer of two humble fascisti to death. That contrasts with the life sentence given the killer of King Humbert, and the pardon granted by King Victor Emmanuel to the man who attempted to assassinate him. Pampering of gunmen is dangerous.

SOMETHING TO DO

One of the really big problems facing the world today arises from the increasing number of mental degenerates. England and Wales are estimated to have 20,000 unconfined lunatics and near-lunatics. Marriage between mentally deficient persons is making the problem worse. The problem challenges the attention of thinking people.

That the Metropolitan police is "the finest in the world" is a little doubtful. But take it from this irritated observer, the police of one of the precincts are pretty slow. About 5:45 a. m., Friday, a plate-glass window of an apartment on a certain street was completely shattered, and a second later a distressed woman's horrible screams aroused the sector. "Help, police, murder, help, help, save me, save me!" screamed the woman. . . .

Some one had the presence of mind to blow a police whistle. Others whistled lustily by placing their fingers in their mouths, and cries of help were yelled by folk who peered out of their windows. But no help arrived. We instructed a bellboy to phone for police. The bellboy informed us that he had checked up on the disturbance and discovered that it was "stew stuff" on the ninth floor, a husband was beating his wife, etc.

But it might have been a murder, and the officers arrived on the scene thirty minutes after they were summoned.

THE HARD LIFE OF THE PIONEERS

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—A congressional inquiry into a subject full of so many highly technical details as the loss of the Lamport and Holt liner Vestris, as demanded by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, is calculated to develop into a peculiar affair.

Investigators and investigated frequently understand each other imperfectly. The investigators seldom have a clear idea just what they are about. The probe is apt to take queer directions accordingly.

Old-timers in congress still recall the seeming strangeness of many of the questions put to witnesses by one of the members of the senate body which undertook to fix responsibility for the Titanic disaster.

"Were there enough watertight compartments to hold all the passengers?" was the whole tenor of his cross-examination.

His real thought was not revealed. It came out that the puzzled solon, believed a watertight compartment, to be some sort of contrivance for passengers and crew to get off in from a sinking ship.

Nevertheless, a congressional inquiry does have the merit of directness.

The port authorities, responsible for clearing a ship, naturally are unwilling to uncover testimony which might indicate neglect on their part, in permitting her to sail in anything short of the maximum condition to insure the safety of all on board.

Congressional investigators can have no such motive for concealment. There can be no denying that passenger vessels on the various South American runs, regardless of nationality, do appear to meet with a larger percentage of mishaps than those in the transatlantic service.

They are older craft generally, for one thing, and not all kept in the same tip-top repair as those of the more fashionably-patronized lines.

The South American coasts are so well surveyed either "Uncharted rocks" still remain for big boats to crack their backs on between the Caribbean and the River Plate, the Gulf of Panama and Valparaiso.

Even the Vestris' slate was not clean, as suggested by accounts of her since her recent loss.

The fire which destroyed a large part of her cargo, on one of her voyages a few years ago, now represented as having been a mere trifle, in reality barely missed being as serious as the catastrophe which finally sent her to the bottom of the sea.

Captain Carey, then, as more lately, in command, though reckoned an exceedingly capable navigator, was a rough old mariner, too.

Angered by his passengers' complaints at his refusal to summon help while the flames raged in the Vestris' hold, he went so far as to threaten unless the malcontents ceased their clamor.

At length he did, indeed succeed in quenching the conflagration, but, however, without running his boat ashore on an obscure West Indian isle, where, undisturbed by salvage claimants, he flooded her with sea water.

The performance was a first-class sensation in Buenos Aires when the Vestris arrived there—as I well remember, since an article I published in connection with it cost me a libel suit which I had to defend for two years before winning in the Argentine courts.

Incidentally, the captain was on his side. It was an aggrieved passenger, not the redoubtable shipmaster, who took umbrage at what I had said.

to help along the good work, a stimulating hair tonic. Move the scalp with the fingertips, using small circular motions. Keep it up for ten or more minutes every night. Its tiring, I admit, but it's simply marvellous for your hair.

Brushing, I scarcely need tell you about, but as a hint to the easily wearied, the use of military brushes will facilitate the labor of administering the hundred bedtime strokes. As a parting injunction, let me say that your hair deserves the attention of a good brush, and a good brush deserves sensible, sanitary care. Scrub it often with a mild soap and lots of hot water, and be sure to dry with the bristles downward.

MENU HINT

Broiled Steak Mashed Potatoes
Fried Onion Dressing
Cauliflower Salad

Squash Pie Coffee
Mrs. L. J. Miller sends in the recipe for fried onion dressing used in today's menu.

She says it's a favorite way of using bread scraps. Many thanks, Mrs. Miller, I'll try it out in my own kitchen. It seemed to me it would go well with broiled steak as well as many other things.

Today's Recipes.

Fried Onion Dressing—Fry out one onion in butter in a frying pan large enough for the dressing. Mix dressing as usual — boiling water poured over bread-crumbs with a large tablespoon butter, one egg and a pinch of salt. Stir in the onion soon as it is done, and return all to the well-greased frying pan, until browned on both sides. Sometimes we leave out the onion and use a pound or less of beef cut in small pieces.

Squash Pie—One cup squash, steamed and strained; one cup heavy cream; one cup sugar; three eggs, slightly beaten; one teaspoon each of cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and salt. Line a deep pieplate with puff paste. Brush over paste with white of egg, slightly beaten, and sprinkle with stale bread crumbs; fill and bake in a moderate oven. Serve warm.

CRANBERRY CATSUP

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

One quart cranberries, one cup water, two cups vinegar. Tie in a piece of muslin a few cloves, four whole allspice, a tablespoon broken stick cinnamon and some mace. Strainer all together until fruit is soft. Press through a colander. Add two cups brown sugar, simmer ten minutes longer and seal. This recipe makes a delicious catsup and one conveniently made in small quantities at any time during the winter.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The bobbed hair mode introduced an ear of hair health to the women of the world. Short hair facilitated sanitary care of the scalp. The shampoo or hair treatment progressed from a fortnightly event all too often followed by a distressing head cold to a quick, comfortable weekly so closely akin that it takes a rite. And, as I have told you so frequently, health and beauty are wisest woman than I to distinguish the boundary where one ends and the other begins.

Probably the soundest principle in the development of hair health is that sturdy, luxuriant growth which is so dependent upon scalp invigoration. There are two or three ways to stimulate the scalp. The first, rotary massage, is the best, to my way of thinking. I have known actual instances where regular, patient, vigorous massage has resulted in a brand new crop of hair.

The Smithsonian Institution claims that the massage of inactive hair follicles is the one certain way of re-animating hair growth. To massage properly, you need good firm fingertips. And to help along the good work, a stimulating hair tonic. Move the scalp with the fingertips, using small circular motions. Keep it up for ten or more minutes every night. Its tiring, I admit, but it's simply marvellous for your hair.

Brushing, I scarcely need tell you about, but as a hint to the easily wearied, the use of military brushes will facilitate the labor of administering the hundred bedtime strokes. As a parting injunction, let me say that your hair deserves the attention of a good brush, and a good brush deserves sensible, sanitary care. Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"IF NOSE BLEEDS FREQUENTLY
TAKE CHILD TO SPECIALIST

Nose Bleeds

Mrs. A.—The blood vessels in the noses of children are quite near the surface in the mucous membrane and the consequence is that the bloody noses are frequent occurrences. They are more than ordinarily frequent or seem to arise without adequate cause, you should take your child to a children's specialist or a clinic for a thorough check-up, for they may arise from some constitutional disease or local ulcers. Mention the fact that he has frequent nose bleeds so he can be given an examination of the nose.

Don't forget that children not infrequently find it interesting to use the nose and ears for hiding places for pebbles and other small articles.

Home Treatments for Nose Bleed:

Position: Sit upright. Don't lie down or bend the head over a basin. Then try some of these:

1. Press firmly with the hand on the bleeding side of the nose and over the face side of the nose. 2. If pressing does not stop the flow, insert a piece of gauze dipped in an antiseptic ointment, such as boracic acid ointment, leave an end so that you can pull it out. (If you should happen to have some adrenalin—one-to-one-thousandth solution—wet the gauze in this. It contracts the blood vessels quickly.)

Better than gauze alone, is gauze with the combination of a rubber finger cot. Dip the finger cot in an antiseptic ointment (oil or cold cream will do if you have any antiseptic.) Put it in the nose with pinners and then stuff it with cotton or gauze. Leave the end of the cot out, of course. (This forms an elastic pressure which can easily be removed.)

3. Hold the hands in ice water, or hold a good sized piece of ice. This is an effective way of checking nose bleed, according to Kellogg.

A year ago I went for your million-dollar pamphlet and I used it until it fell apart. I am 5 ft. 2 inches tall, and I weighed 157! I now weigh 121, a loss of 36 pounds. I sometimes go up to 123, but I soothed the extra two pounds. I now eat anything I like, but in Moderation. I used to be short-winded and have sharp pains in my heart and now all that is gone and I feel better than I have felt in years—like a young girl. Oh, the joy of wearing a 36 size rather than a 44! My husband and friends tell me I have accomplished a miracle. I have often been stopped by persons who know me and have to explain how I reduced. E.

76 pounds' loss is a miracle. E. and you deserve a lot of credit.

Your weight will vary two or three pounds, depending upon the amount of water your tissues hold, but you are wise to watch it so that it doesn't go beyond that.

Thanks for letting us know your wonderful results.

The million-dollar pamphlet of reducing and gaining weight can be obtained by following column rules.

Nail Inflammations

Mrs. B. Writes that the inflammation around her finger nail, which was very persistent, finally cleared up with the use of Lysol in hot water. She doesn't say how long it took, but it was probably through soaking frequently in the solution.

Different tissues seem to heal under different antiseptics. An antiseptic which works beautifully with one doesn't always seem to be healing with another. It is not the antiseptic which heals. This simply kills off the germs and Nature does the healing.

Tomorrow: Muscular Rheumatism.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I am wildly in love with a boy and have been for three years, and he loves me a great deal. We were engaged, but he was jealous and we broke up. Now we have been talking up each other by telephone. He calls from long distance. He claims he still loves me, but will not come to make up with my family. I don't want to run off to marry. Shall I quit talking to him when he calls? I am lonely and life is gone for me. I am going to be a nun if I can't marry the boy I love. Is it all right to be a nun and forget all?"

DISGUSTED.

You wouldn't stop thinking because you became a nun, disgusted, any more than if you stayed at home and went about your ordinary duties. The only reason one should have for becoming a nun or anything else that calls for self-sacrifice, is a desire to do their noble work rather than anything else in the world. I think, too, that if the young man does not care enough for you to come to see you make up with your family he does not care enough for you to marry him. Get the idea that you are suffering out of your head. I really think it would be better not to talk to him over the phone and to forget him. Or, if you think you can't do that, interest yourself in your work or in other friends and put him in the background of your life.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 22 and my boy friend is 22. We have been together for a few years and seem to like each other's company very much. But I do not know whether he loves me or not. He never tells me he does unless I ask, but I love him with all my heart and soul. We hardly ever talk of marriage, and I don't think he would ever think of it if I didn't mention it. If I knew he never intended loving me I would go away and try to forget. Mrs. Lee, I wish you could tell me what to do. How can I find out if he truly loves me?"

BROKEN HEARTED.

You know I think it is a good plan for a girl never to go exclusively with one young man until she is engaged. Then there are no misunderstandings. This boy probably takes it for granted that you know he loves you and will mention marriage when he is in a position to do so, and it is not for you to say, "I don't know, by his attentions to you, that you understand. Why don't you accept an invitation from another young man some time and be sure he knows about it. It may wake him up. Then you can explain your action by telling how you felt, and it may clear up the mystery."

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am writing to you with a problem, and any help that you can give me will be greatly appreciated.

"I am in love with a young man who is in a distant city. Last year, while he was in school here, I went with him steady and he showed me in every way that he loved me. Now we are writing to each other—just friendly letters. How can I find out whether or not he still cares? One reason for his remaining silent concerning his feelings, I am sure, is his financial status. Shall I continue writing to him, and let things drift as they are at present, or is there any way that I can find out?"

One reason for my desiring to know is that there is a young man who has asked me to marry him. He has every quality which would make a good husband—money, social position, fine family, agreeable disposition, etc. I enjoy being with him and we have all interests in common. I feel as though I could be reasonably happy with him. But the shadow of the other boy remains. What shall I do? Thank you for your kindness.

WORRIED.

I could not advise you to marry this second boy while you say you love the other. Everything that was not to your liking when married—and there would be things. Although everything seemed so fair, you would think again, because you had avoided it. How can I find out if he truly loves me?"

TROUBLE IN THE CAMP

Dove heard Peter's complaint in spite of the confusion.

"I am dreadfully sorry, my dear boy," replied Dove, himself pining for breath. "It is rather stuffy, I admit, and just at present we are in rather close quarters, but by and by all the birds will have arrived and then they will scatter; now every pigeon seems to be trying to light on the same spot at the same time. But be patient and then you shall see what a jolly time we shall have."

"I am sure I hope so," said the poor boy. "But let me tell you if I had ever dreamed that this was your idea of fun I should never have come to the Great Woods! This branch is liable to give way any moment."

"Why don't those silly birds find some other place to perch? Can't they see it is too crowded here? Just watch that fellow trying to scramble on. I wish I was standing over there. I would give him a poke in the ribs he would not soon forget. The very idea!"

The boy's question was never either asked or answered, however, for just at that second a dreadful clamor arose.

Pigeons all about Peter rose screaming into the air and dropped to the earth with groans. Some, of course, fell because they lost their footing, but others seemed to have been hit by some mysterious weapon—just what the boy could not at first see. Then the woods were filled with noise, and below him the boy could hear the voices of Two Legs. Looking down, he saw great numbers of his own race running along, some this way and some that, and in their hands they held great poles.

Now the boy saw that it was with these poles from their perches. The mysterious weapon on that was causing so many of the birds to fall to the ground was no longer a secret. It was a pole, and behind it was a human. Peter was horrified.

"Here! Here! Stop it, stop it, I tell you," shriek

LOSING BILLION TO CROOKS

Americans, who generally pride themselves on being the most money-wise people on earth, will lose more than a billion dollars through worthless investments in 1928.

Moreover, 80 per cent of such worthless investments are sold by mail to people who know nothing about the reputations of the sellers and who fail to take the only precaution necessary by asking the advice of their own bankers.

This is the situation revealed by Paul Tomlinson, financial expert, in an article in The Elks Magazine.

There are hundreds of reliable banking and investment houses which continually send out investment literature and offer their securities by mail. Mr. Tomlinson points out, but these are always anxious to have the prospective purchaser investigate their standings and many even urge it.

But that gullible portion of the public which sinks $800,000,000 yearly in worthless and frequently fraudulent, investment schemes apparently gives up its money without ever inquiring whether the seller is the most reputable house in Wall street or a fly-by-night outfit whose only assets are a few desks and a mailing list.

And the gullible ones, Mr. Tomlinson finds, are not the widows and orphans who are usually victimized by the crooks of fiction stories, but many men who are successful in their own businesses or professions, otherwise intelligent artisans and others who have had the benefit of a thorough education.

If people would only take the trouble to find out about the houses they are dealing with by mail, the worthless ones would soon die out from lack of patronage. If they would follow this plan the problem of fake securities would solve itself automatically.

HUMAN TIGERS RAVAGE SOCIETY

In 1916 a criminal was sent to a western penitentiary for robbery and attempted murder. Shortly afterwards he was transferred to an asylum for the insane.

He was promptly returned to the prison, as being the proper place for him. Here he proved himself so "hard-boiled" that he was again transferred, this time to another penitentiary designed for the most recalcitrant and dangerous criminals.

A short time ago he was released, having served his sentence. He had, in the eyes of the law, "paid his debt to society."

Now he is again in a jail for shooting a druggist during a hold-up he committed. When arrested, he was in possession of a stolen automobile, and he "shot it out" with the police.

Society has no means for identifying and heading off in advance the human tigers as it has for the jungle beasts. But once the felons have disclosed themselves it is neither humane to the criminal nor fair to decent people to take all restraint off one who has proved himself too much for prison.

There is little wonder that we have dismally failed in preventing crime when such episodes as this can occur.

Why should a known criminal be set free to ply his trade on an unprotected public. Is it any wonder that the criminal regards law and order as something of a joke, that but seldom reacts upon himself?

The Way of the World

THROUGH THE SKY

Many fascinating changes are ahead. One of them is teaching by radio. Broadcasting of lessons to school children has one weakness. Knowledge cannot be pumped into anyone. Education cannot be acquired like taking on ten gallons of gasoline at a filling station. The best education system is the one which gives preparation for life by contact with life.

CRASH SURPLUS

European visitors to this country comment on the number of automobile accidents. At home, they say, conditions are different. There the careless motorist who causes death in an automobile accident can himself be put to death. The guilty motorist also is forced to pay all of the expenses of the injured growing out of the accident, including funeral and burial services. The careless motorists who cause accidents seldom can avoid prison sentences there.

America has too many traffic crashes. We would do well to consider the way of our European friends.

SILLY SCIENCE

The English scientists who worry over what is going to happen to the moon a million years from now are silly. They are on a par with the American professors who spend many hours daily playing bridge.

Much more sensible was the scientific conference on coal held in Pittsburgh, November 19. The list of ways in which coal can be utilized to make man happy continues to grow.

COMES BACK

Italy, without capital punishment for 40 years, decides it is necessary and condemns the slayer of two humble fascisti to death. That contrasts with the life sentence given the killer of King Humbert, and the pardon granted by King Victor Emmanuel to the man who attempted to assassinate him. Pampering of gunmen is dangerous.

SOMETHING TO DO

One of the really big problems facing the world today arises from the increasing number of mental degenerates. England and Wales are estimated to have 20,000 unconfined lunatics and near-lunatics. Marriage between mentally deficient persons making the problem worse. The problem challenges the attention of thinking people.

That the Metropolitan police is "the finest in the world" there is little doubt. But take it from this irritated observer, the police of one of the precincts are pretty slow. About 5:45 a. m. Friday, a plate-glass window of an apartment on a certain street was completely shattered, and a second later a distressed woman's horrible screams aroused the sector. "Help, police, murder, help, help, save me, save me!" cried the woman.

Some one had the presence of mind to blow a police whistle. Others whistled lustily by placing their fingers in their mouths, and cries of help were yelled by folk who peered out of their windows. But no help arrived. We instructed a bellboy to phone for police. The bellboy informed us that he had checked up on the disturbance and discovered that it was "stew stuff" on the ninth floor, a husband was beating his wife, etc.

But it might have been a murder, and the officers arrived on the scene thirty minutes after they were summoned.

THE HARD LIFE OF THE PIONEERS

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — A congressional inquiry into a subject full of so many highly technical details as the loss of the Lampart & Holt liner Vestris, as demanded by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, is calculated to develop into a peculiar affair.

Investigators and investigated frequently understand each other imperfectly. The investigators seldom have a clear idea just what they are about. The probe is apt to take queer directions accordingly.

Old-timers in congress still recall the seeming strangeness of many of the questions put to witnesses by one of the members of the senate body which undertook to fix responsibility for the Titanic disaster.

"Were there enough watertight compartments to hold all the passengers?" was the whole tenor of his cross-examination. His real thought was not revealed. It came out that the puzzled solon, believed a watertight compartment, to be some sort of contrivance for passengers and crew to get off in from a sinking ship.

Nevertheless, a congressional inquiry does have the merit of disinterestedness.

The port authorities, responsible for clearing a ship, naturally are unwilling to uncover testimony which might indicate, reflect on their part, in permitting her to sail in anything short of the maximum condition to insure the safety of all on board.

Congressional investigators can have no such motive for concealment.

There can be no denying that passenger vessels on the various South American runs, regardless of nationality, do appear to meet with a larger percentage of mishaps than those in the transatlantic service.

They are older craft generally, to help along the good work, a stimulating hair tonic. Move the scalp with the fingertips, using small circular motions. Keep it up for ten or more minutes every night. Its tiring, I admit, but it's simply marvellous for your hair.

Brushing, I scarcely need tell you about, but as a hint to the easily wearied, the use of military brushes will facilitate the labor of administering the hundred bedtime strokes. As a parting injunction, let me say that your hair deserves the attention of a good brush, and a good brush deserves sensible, sanitary care. Scrub it often with a mild soap and lots of hot water, and be sure to dry with the bristles downward.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The bobbed hair mode introduced an era of hair health to the women of the world. Short hair facilitated sanitary care of the scalp. The shampoo or hair treatment progressed from a fortnightly event all too often followed by a distressing head cold to a quick, comfortable weekly so closely akin that it takes a rite. And, as I have told you so frequently, health and beauty are wiser woman than I to distinguish the boundary where one ends and the other begins.

Probably the soundest principle in the development of hair health is that sturdy, luxuriant growth which is so dependent upon scalp invigoration. There are two or three ways to stimulate the scalp. The first, rotary massage, is the best, to my way of thinking. I have known actual instances where regular, patient, vigorous massage has resulted in a brand new crop of hair.

The Smithsonian Institution claims that the massage of inactive hair follicles is the one certain way of re-animating hair growth. To massage properly, you need good firm fingertips. And

Broiled Steak Mashed Potatoes Fried Onion Dressing Cauliflower Salad Squash Pie Coffee

Mrs. L. J. Miller sends in the recipe for fried onion dressing used in today's menu. She says it's a favorite way of using bread scraps. Many thanks, Mrs. Miller, I'll try it out in my own kitchen. It seemed to me it would go well with broiled steak as well as many other things.

Today's Recipes—Fry out one onion in butter in a frying pan large enough for the dressing.

Mix dressing as usual—boiling water poured over bread-crumbs with a large tablespoon butter, one egg and a pinch of sage. Stir in the onion as soon as it is done, and return all to the well-greased frying pan. Fry slowly, turning occasionally, until browned on both sides. Sometimes we leave out the onion and use a pound or less of beef cut in small pieces.

Squash Pie—One cup squash, steamed and strained; one cup heavy cream, one cup sugar, three eggs, slightly beaten, one teaspoon each of cinnamon, nutmeg, ginger and salt. Line a deep pieplate with puff paste. Brush over paste with white of egg, slightly beaten, and sprinkle with stale bread crumbs; fill and bake in a moderate oven. Serve warm.

CRANBERRY CATSUP

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

One quart cranberries, one cup water, two cups vinegar. Tie in a piece of muslin a few cloves, four whole allspice, a tablespoon broken stick cinnamon and some nutmeg. Simmer all together until fruit is soft. Press through a colander. Add two cups brown sugar, simmer ten minutes longer and seal. This recipe makes a delicious catsup and one conveniently made in small quantities at any time during the winter.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

Investigations by Dr. Edwin L. Thorndike, probably one of the cleverest psychologists now living, indicate that the study of mathematics and Latin in high schools does not increase students' thinking ability as much as teachers often lead one to believe.

The trouble with certain phases of mathematics seems to be that the same kind of reasoning cannot be applied to any other problems in everyday life. The form of logic used, for example, in geometry is never employed elsewhere. According to the Thorndike investigations, pupils who had been studying cooking, sewing and bookkeeping often showed as much improvement in their intelligence tests as did pupils of similar intelligence who had been pursuing mathematics.

Such tidings to those of us who were stupid at mathematics in our school days are, as Bill Nye used to say, like a ray of sunshine in a rut-hole. Maybe our minds have not vegetated as much as we feared.

IF NOSE BLEEDS FREQUENTLY TAKE CHILD TO SPECIALIST

Nose Bleeds. The blood vessels in the noses of children are quite near the surface in the mucous membrane and the consequence is that the bloody noses are frequent occurrences. If they are more than ordinarily frequent or seem to arise without adequate cause, you should take your child to a children's specialist or a clinic for a thorough check-up, or they may arise from some constitutional disease or local ulcers. Mention the fact that he has frequent nose bleeds, so he can be given an examination of the nose.

Don't forget that children not infrequently find it interesting to use the nose and ears for hiding places for pebbles and other small articles.

Home Treatments for Nose Bleed:

Position: Sit upright. Don't lie down or bend the head over a basin. Then try some of these:

1. Press firmly with the hand on the bleeding side of the nose and over the forehead and bridge of the nose. 2. If pressing does not stop the flow, insert a piece of gauze dipped in an antiseptic ointment, such as boric acid ointment, leave an end so that you can pull it out. (If you should happen to have some adrenalin—one-to-one-thousandth solution—wet the gauze in this. It contracts the blood vessels quickly.)

Better than gauze alone, is gauze with the combination of a rubber finger cot. Dip the finger cot in an antiseptic ointment (oil or cold cream will do if you have any antiseptic.) Put it in the nose with pinners and then stuff it with cotton or gauze. Leave the end of the cot out, of course. This forms an elastic pressure which can easily be removed.

3. Hold the hands in ice water, or hold a good sized piece of ice. This is an effective way of checking nose bleed, according to Kellogg. "A year ago I went for your million-dollar pamphlet and I used it until it felt part. I am but 5 ft. 2 inches tall, and I weighed 197! I now weigh 121, a loss of 76 pounds. I sometimes go up to 123, but I soon lose the extra two pounds. I now eat anything I like, but Moderation is used to be short-winded and have sharp pains in my heart and now all that is gone and I feel better than I have felt in years—like a young girl. Oh, the joy of wearing a 36 size rather than a 46! My husband and friends tell me I have accomplished a miracle. I have often been stopped by persons who know me and have to explain how I reduced."

76 pounds' loss is a miracle, E. and you deserve a lot of credit. Your weight will vary two or three pounds, depending upon the amount of water your tissues hold, but you are wise to watch it so that it doesn't go beyond that.

Thanks for letting us know your wonderful results.

The million-dollar pamphlet or reducing and gaining weight can be obtained by following column rules.

Nail Inflammations

Mrs. B. Writes that the inflammation around her finger nail, which was very persistent, finally cleared up with the use of Lysol in hot water. She doesn't say how it was used, but it was probably through soaking frequently in the solution.

Different tissues seem to heat under different antiseptics. An antiseptic which works beautifully with one doesn't always seem to be healing with another. It is not the antiseptic which kills. This simply kills off the germs and Nature does the healing.

Tomorrow: Muscular Rheumatism.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"My Dear Mrs. Lee: I am wildly in love with a boy and have been for three years, and he loves me a great deal. We were engaged, but he was jealous and we broke up. Now we have been talking to each other by telephone. He claims from long distance. He claims he still loves me, but will not come to make up with my family. I don't want to run off to marry. Shall I quit talking to him when he calls? I am lonely and life is gone for me. I am going to be a nun if I can't marry the boy I love. Is it all right to be a nun and forget all?"

"DISGUSTED." You wouldn't stop thinking because you became a nun. Disgusted, any more than if you stayed at home and went about your ordinary duties. The only reason one should give for becoming a nun or anything else that calls for self-sacrifice, is a desire to do their noble work rather than anything else in the world. I think, too, that if the young man does not care enough for you to come to see you and make up with your family he does not care enough for you to marry him. Get the idea that you are suffering out of your head. I really think it would be better not to talk to him over the phone and to forget him. Or, if you think you can't do that, interest yourself in your work or in other friends and put him in the background of your life.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 22 and my boy friend is 22. We have been together for a few years and seem to like each other very much. But I do not know whether he loves me or not. He never tells me he does unless I ask, but I love him with all my heart and soul. We hardly ever talk of marriage, and I don't think he would ever think of it if I didn't mention it. If I knew he never intended loving me I would go away and try to forget. Mrs. Lee, I wish you could tell me what to do. How can I find out if he truly loves me?"

"BROKEN HEARTED." You know I think it is a good plan for a girl never to go exclusively with one young man until she is engaged. Then there are no misunderstandings. This boy probably takes it for granted that you know he loves you and will cement marriage when he is in a position to do so, and it never dawns on him that you don't know, by his attentions to you, that you understand. Why don't you accept an invitation from another young man some time and be sure he knows about it. It may wake him up. Then you can explain your action by telling how you felt, and it may clear up the mystery.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am writing to you with a problem, and any help that you can give me will be greatly appreciated. "I am in love with a young man who is in a distant city. Last year, while he was in school here, I went with him steadily and he showed me in every way that he loved me. Now we are writing to each other—just friendly letters. How can I find out whether or not he still cares? One reason for his remaining silent concerning his feelings, I am sure, is his financial status. Shall I continue writing to him, and let things drift as they are at present, or is there any way that I can find out?"

"One reason for my desiring to know is that there is a young man who has asked me to marry him. He has every quality which would make a good husband—money, social position, fine family, agreeable disposition, etc. I enjoy being with him and we have all interests in common. I feel as though I could be reasonably happy with him. But the shadow of the other boy remains. What shall I do? Thank you for your kindness."

"WORRIED." I could not advise you to marry this second boy while you say you love the other. Everything that was not to your liking when married—and there would be things, although everything seems so fair—you would think would have been avoided if you had married the other. Why not write to the first boy, telling him about the second? If he wants you he will surely write and tell you and ask you to wait until he can make a home for you. If he does not yet will know that he is not in love with you.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

TROUBLE IN THE CAMP

Dove heard Peter's complaint in spite of the confusion.

"I am dreadfully sorry, my dear boy," replied Dove, himself panting for breath. "It is rather stuffy. I admit, and just at present we are in rather close quarters, but by and by all the birds will have arrived and then they will scatter; now every pigeon seems to be trying to light on the same spot at the same time. But be patient and then you shall see what a jolly time we shall have."

"I am sure I hope so," said the poor boy. "But let me tell you if I had ever dreamed that this was your idea of fun I should never have come to the Great Woods! This branch is liable to give way any moment."

"Why don't these silly birds find some other place to perch? Can't they see it is too crowded here? Just watch that fellow trying to scramble on. I wish I was standing over there. I would give him a poke in the ribs he would not soon forget. The very idea why?"

The boy's question was never either asked or answered, however, for just at that second a dreadful clamor arose.

Pigeons all about Peter rose screeching into the air and dropped to the earth with groans. Some, of course, fell because they lost their footing, but others seemed to have been hit by some mysterious weapon—just what the boy could not at first see.

Then the woods were filled with noise, and below him the boy could hear the voices of Two Legs. Looking down, he saw great numbers of his own race running along, some this way and some that, and in their hands they held great poles.

Now the boy saw that it was with these poles they were knocking pigeons from their perches. The mysterious weapon on that was causing so many of the birds to fall to the ground was no longer a secret. It was a pole and behind it was a human. Peter was horrified.

"Here! Here! Stop it, stop it, I tell you," shrieked he to his own people, but Peter's voice was lost in the commotion. Not a human paid a bit of attention to him—indeed, never even heard him—but went right on with the terrible work of destroying his scattered friends.

Xenia Central Crushes Wilmington High 20 To 6

BUCCANEERS SCUTTLE QUAKER SHIP EASILY

Wilson's Proteges Reveal Scoring Attack Missing Recently; Play Heads-up Ball To Turn Back Ancient Rivals Tenth Time

EXHIBITING a power developed through a season of vicissitudes, Xenia Central High Buccaneers ripped over the prostrate remains of Wilmington High School's football eleven for a 20 to 6 victory, its third in a row over the Quakers in the last three years, on a muddy gridiron at Wilmington Thursday afternoon. Wilmington is sometimes prostrate like the Washington monument, but this year was an exception and the Quakers proved themselves more culpable than capable. Anyway, the Buccaneers were about due to kick somebody for a spiral stairway, and Wilmington was selected as the victim.

With Birch Bell, speedy regular halfback, out of the lineup because of an injured hand sustained in the Sidney game, Xenia pushed the Quaker eleven all over the field and made the closing of Wilmington's 1928 season a dismal one.

Scoring touchdowns in the first, second and fourth quarters, Xenia led 13 to 0 at the half and rolled up twenty points before Wilmington counted its lone touchdown.

Jones, Wilmington end, provided the most thrilling of an almost endless number of thrills, when he picked up a Xenia fumble on his own thirty-yard line and galloped seventy yards for the touchdown that saved his team from an otherwise humiliating defeat.

Xenia's first touchdown came late in the first period when Smittle, roving center, intercepted a pass by Probascio and behind perfect interference, sprinted fifty-eight yards for the initial score. Scurry failed to kick goal.

In the second quarter, following an exchange of punts which Scurry had much the better of, the Buccaneers opened up an offensive which carried the ball to the Wilmington twenty. Scurry and Adair alternated in lugging the sphere for substantial gains. At this point Adair hurled a pass to Scurry who ran the remaining short distance for another touchdown. This time Scurry kicked the extra point perfectly from placement.

Wilmington looked to forward passes for salvation in the third quarter after finding Xenia's line would not give an inch on line plays. Wilmington received the kick-off to start the second half and a twenty-six yard pass, Hutchins to Hlatt, placed the ball on the Xenia thirty-two. The same combination was tried again but the alert Smittle was there to intercept the pass and Scurry punted out of danger.

Wilmington again threatened when Murphy caught a pass from Hutchins for a thirty-yard gain, putting the ball on the Xenia forty. After two more passes were incomplete Hutchins tried still another and once more it was intercepted. In the nick of time, this time by Scurry on his own twenty. Scurry fumbled on the play but Scott recovered for Xenia. On a sweeping drive, Lane plays by Scurry and Hutchins advanced the ball to the Wilmington thirty-five, where the Buccaneer march was stopped and Scurry was forced to kick.

Wilmington then launched an offensive that pushed Xenia back to its own thirty-yard stripe as the third period ended. Murphy and Hutchins bore the burden during the advance. Hutchins attempted one of his numerous passes but Adair snagged the ball and ran

THEN ALL-BRAN SAVED HIM FROM CONSTIPATION

A message for people who use laxatives

Mr. Skiles wrote us a voluntary testimonial after Kellogg's ALL-BRAN had saved him from dreadful constipation. Read his tribute:

July 12, 1927
"For years I have been so constipated. After trying every kind of drug possible, I could only get temporary relief. I became discouraged and gave up hopes, when a friend told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I had read so many testimonials I had no faith. I was of the opinion testimonials were put out by friends. I will not only give you the privilege to use my name, but I will go on the witness stand and testify to my statement. I cannot express words great enough to meet with Kellogg's food."
—ARTHUR SKILES, 325 N. Kedzie Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If constipation is preying upon your health, check it before too late. If you are using habit-forming laxatives, stop it before this harmful practice fastens its grip too tight.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Just eat two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. A 100% bran cereal—delicious with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Bowling

The Greene County Lumber Co., champions of the Recreation Bowling League for the last two seasons, punished the maples with a vengeance Thursday night, snatching two league records in the course of a match with the Lang Chevrolet Co.

The champion quintet collected a three-game total of 2,982, breaking the previous record of 2,862 held by the same team by a margin of 120 pins. The record of 1,002 for high team single game also went by the boards when the lumber company rolled 1,046 its first game. This beat the former mark established by the McDowell and Torrence Lumber Co. by forty-four pins. The champions rolled 913 the second game and came back with 1,023 the third game.

William Moorehead led the attack with a series of 652, three pins shy of the league record for high individual three-game total. He rolled 243 his first game which was also only three pins below the league record for high individual single game. Hollis Peterson, slight average man of the league, turned in a series of 647. Queer as it may seem, despite this record-breaking exhibition, the lumber company only won two out of three games. Langs won the second brush, 931 to 913. As a result, the lumber firm dropped to second place, one full game behind the Red Wing Co., which has undisputed leadership of the league for the present. McGee topped the Lang team with a 612 total.

Xenia Central Crushes Wilmington High 20 To 6

BUCCANEERS SCUTTLE QUAKER SHIP EASILY

Wilson's Proteses Reveal Scoring Attack Missing Recently; Play Heads-up Ball To Turn Back Ancient Rivals Tenth Time

EXHIBITING a power developed through a season of vicissitudes, Xenia Central High Buccaneers ripped over the prostrate remains of Wilmington High School's football eleven for a 20 to 6 victory, its third in a row over the Quakers in the last three years, on a muddy gridiron at Wilmington Thursday afternoon.

Wilmington is sometimes prostrate like the Washington monument, but this year was an exception and the Quakers proved themselves more culpable than capable. Anyway, the Buccaneers were about due to kick somebody for a spiral stairway, and Wilmington was selected as the victim.

With Birch Bell, speedy regular halfback, out of the lineup because of an injured hand sustained in the Sidney game, Xenia pushed the Quaker eleven all over the field and made the closing of Wilmington's 1928 season a dismal one.

Scoring touchdowns in the first, second and fourth quarters, Xenia led 13 to 0 at the half and rolled up twenty points before Wilmington counted its lone touchdown.

Jones, Wilmington end, provided the most thrilling of an almost end less number of thrills, when he picked up a Xenia fumble on his own thirty-yard line and galloped seventy yards for the touchdown that saved his team from an otherwise humiliating defeat.

Xenia's first touchdown came late in the first period when Smittle, roving center, intercepted a pass by Probascio and behind perfect interference, sprinted fifty-eight yards for the initial score. Scurry failed to kick goal.

In the second quarter, following an exchange of punts which Scurry had much the better of, the Buccaneers opened up an offensive which carried the ball to the Wilmington twenty. Scurry and Adair alternated in lugging the sphere for substantial gains. At this point Adair hurled a pass to Scurry who ran the remaining short distance for another touchdown. This time Scurry kicked the extra point perfectly from placement.

Wilmington looked to forward passes for salvation in the third quarter after finding Xenia's line would not give an inch on line plays. Wilmington received the kick-off to start the second half and a twenty-six yard pass, Hutchins to Hlatt, placed the ball on the Xenia thirty-two. The same combination was tried again but the alert Smittle was there to intercept the pass and Scurry punted out of danger.

Wilmington again threatened when Murphy caught a pass from Hutchins for a thirty-yard gain, putting the ball on the Xenia forty. After two more passes were incomplete Hutchins tried still another and once more it was intercepted. In the nick of time, this time by Scurry on his own twenty. Scurry fumbled on the play but Scott recovered for Xenia. On a sweeping end run, Scurry "scurred" to mid-field. Line plays by Scurry and Hurley advanced the ball to the Wilmington thirty-five, where the Buccaneer march was stopped and Scurry was forced to kick.

Wilmington then launched an offensive that pushed Xenia back to its own thirty-yard stripe as the third period ended. Murphy and Hutchins bore the burden during the advance. Hutchins attempted one of his numerous passes but Adair snagged the ball and ran

The Greene County Lumber Co., champions of the Recreation Bowling League for the last two seasons, punished the maples with a vengeance Thursday night, scattering two league records in the course of a match with the Lang Chevrolet Co.

The champion quintet collected a three-game total of 2,982, breaking the previous record of 2,867, held by the same team by a margin of 120 pins. The record of 1,902 for high team single game also went by the boards when the lumber company rolled 1,046 its first game. This beat the former mark established by the McDowell and Torrance Lumber Co. by forty-four pins. The champions rolled 913 the second game and came back with 1,043 the third game.

William Moorehead led the attack with a series of 652, three pins shy of the league record for high individual three-game total. He rolled 243 his first game which was also only three pins below the league record for high individual single game. Hollis Peterson, high average man of the league, turned in a series of 647, queer as it may seem, despite this record-breaking exhibition, the lumber company only won two out of three games. Langs won the second brush, 951 to 913. As a result, the lumber firm dropped to second place, one full game behind the Red Wing Co., which has undisputed leadership of the league for the present. McGee topped the Lang team with a 612 total.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Paul having been rescued from the mob in the temple was now a prisoner in the hands of the Roman officer, who sent him down to Felix, the Roman governor.

Vs. 24-27—"Felix came with Drusilla his wife, and sent for Paul who heard him." It occurred to the governor that he might while away an idle hour to call Paul and hear him speak. It was a curious situation, Paul puts his judge on trial. Never was Paul more fearless, brave and calm and truer to his real Master, Christ. Two souls were a great audience to Paul and he preached to them one of his greatest sermons. The sermon is not recorded, but its three divisions are given—righteousness, self-control and judgment. He uttered not one word concerning his own case but came straight to the conscience of the man before him.

Vs. 19-23—"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." The Roman governor had the surprise of his life. He had sent for Paul to be amused but his sleep and life were up and judgment loomed before him and the man was terrified—but conviction is not conversion.

Paul narrates the oft-repeated, never-to-be-forgotten story of his conversion. On that memorable day, in that blinding light out of a clear sky, Jesus appeared unto Paul as a heavenly vision. Any higher idea, ideal, impulse, conviction of duty is for us a heavenly vision. We have visions enough but we do not obey them and thus the vision is disobeyed—perhaps until it fades out of our sky.

V. 24—"Paul, thou art mad; thy much learning is turning thee mad." We live in different worlds and often seem insane to one another because we are at different levels of knowledge and experience. The wise man often seems a fool to the witless man. Religion is peculiarly subject to being misunderstood as an empty dream of hallucination.

V. 25—"I am not mad, most excellent Festus; but speak forth words of truth and soberness." Paul's fine temper could stand the strain of the accusation and his wit was quick to furnish an apt reply. Paul was the man of sanity and Festus was the subject of delusion.

V. 26—"The king knoweth these things; none of these things is hidden from him." How delicately he complimented the Jew for knowing these things, "for he said, this hath not been done in a corner." The roots of Christianity are not hidden in tradition and myth but they are historical and he exposed on the rock ledges of Judea.

V. 27—"King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest." Agrippa felt the application of Paul's logic was getting him into close quarters and he was in no mood to be caught in its coils. So feebly he answered, "Almost would thou make me a Christian."

V. 29—"And Paul said, I would to God, that not thou only but also all that hear me this day, might become such as I am except these bonds." Paul meant what he said and his spirit of transparent sincerity affected all hearts. The king rose to retire, followed by the rest of the company.

The National Society for the Advancement of Colored People has announced that no lynching had been reported anywhere in the United States during the first third of the year 1928. This breaks a thirty-nine record.

1. What are some of the facts regarding human nature that a teacher of religious education needs to keep in mind?

It is generally conceded that as great or greater emphasis must be placed upon the person or persons taught than on the teaching material; the person taught has a definite human nature at the door of which lie certain great impulses; the responses of these impulses can be modified; the native impulses vary in relative strength at different ages; there is a variety of ability, opportunity and experience which calls for a flexible program of instruction; human nature is akin to the divine and man has unique worth; his nature is intended for immortality; personality is endowed with the power to choose between better and worse.

2. What is the ultimate aim of religious education?

The ultimate aims of religious education should be:

(a) To guide the growing personality into experiences that will entail a progressive discovery of the deeper meaning of the world and of human nature.

(b) To guide the growing personality in the continuous process of reconstruction in which his ideals and standards of action for self and fellows must undergo, stage by stage of his development.

(c) To foster a consciousness of God and a loyalty to his will for right control of conduct.

(d) To help the growing personality to develop a resourcefulness of its own in the discovery of ways of putting his ideals and his loyalty to God into action.

(e) It might be summed up as helping the individual in his own continuous reconstruction and readjustment of his experiences, increasingly to understand, appreciate and participate in the Christian way of living fruitfully in the world. Principles of Religious Education.

The Better Way

THE RELIGION OF NATIONALISM

The vague of superheated nationalism is attributed to the fact that the upper middle class has discovered in it an emotional substitute for Christianity. What is happening in America and elsewhere is a process of syncretism by which an ever diminishing element of Christianity and an everlasting element of nationalism is entering into the alloy known as modern religion.

The god of the new cult is the patria, the state, for whom the modern man will offer up his life. The ideal of the national state is a mighty, mystic power outside of every individual men. It is the source of blessings for those who worship and obey. To propitiate and serve is the highest duty of man. The national state has a mission and its mission is everlasting.

The new religion has its rituals. The flag is supplanting the cross. The flag is the object of ceremony. Men salute and dip their heads. Men swear allegiance, adolescents orate and the grand old chiefs of the tribe lend an ear to the wisdom of babes and sucklings. The national Christmas of America comes on the Fourth of July.—Prof. H. D. Lasswell of the University of Chicago.

The Continental Church Society of England has furnished one of its missionaries in Australia with an airplane that he may cover more efficiently his territory which is as large as England. This missionary was a member of the English Air Force during the World War.

AMERICA'S FIRST THANKSGIVING DAY

The first expedition of Puritans arriving in Massachusetts December, 1620 planted their grain too early the following spring so that all was lost because of early frosts.

They kept cheerful, though at starvation point, hoping that a shipload of provisions might come over from England. Weeks and months passed by and no ship could be sighted.

Finally one morning, someone spied a white sail in the distance and there was great rejoicing when the expected friends and provisions arrived.

The governor had the church bell rung and all the people, old and young, gathered together and gave thanks to God for sending food to them.

With great care, seed was planted the following spring which yielded a plentiful harvest and this is the basic fact for an annual American Thanksgiving day.

D. Carl Yoder.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. How does Paul's trial compare with Christ before Pilate?

2. Where and how can we defend the honor of Christ today?

3. What are good points in the introduction to a sermon or any speech?

4. Why do men plead excuses for not entering the Christian life?

5. What are some of the chief visions of life? What is a heavenly vision?

6. Name other great men that were considered foolish or crazy.

7. How can we distinguish between mental hallucination and spiritual reality?

CLERICUS SAYS: "Blessed is the man who lives up to an enlightened conscience. We might have a good science and still be in the wrong, but we cannot have a good conscience and be hypocrites. Conscience may be educated; it must be guided and illuminated by the Holy Scriptures."

LESSON PRAYER

May we, dear Lord, in our study gain Paul's view of his life work as a stimulus for our own Christian work. Give to us a conscience void of offense—the most valuable possession any of us can have. And to each one of us give some heavenly vision and help us to obey it that more and more glorious visions may open before us.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Paul having been rescued from the mob in the temple was now a prisoner in the hands of the Roman officer, who sent him down to Felix, the Roman governor.

Vs. 24-27—"Felix came with Drusilla his wife, and sent for Paul who heard him." It occurred to the governor that he might while away an idle hour to call Paul and hear him speak. It was a curious situation. Paul puts his judge on trial. Never was Paul more fearless, brave and calm and truer to his real Master, Christ. Two souls were a great audience to Paul and he preached to them one of his greatest sermons. The sermon is not recorded, but its three divisions are given—righteousness, self-control and judgment. He uttered not one word concerning his own case but came straight to the conscience of the man before him.

Vs. 19-23—"I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision." The Roman governor had the surprise of his life. He had sent for Paul to be amused by his sleepy conscience was aroused, his wicked life rose up and judgment loomed before him and the man was terrified—but conviction is not conversion.

Paul narrates the oft-repeated, never-to-be-forgotten story of his conversion. On that memorable day, in that blinding light out of a clear sky, Jesus appeared unto Paul as a heavenly vision. Any higher idea, ideal, impulse, conviction of duty is for us a heavenly vision. We have visions enough but we do not obey them and thus the vision is disobeyed—perhaps until it fades out of our sky. V. 24—"Paul, thou art mad; thy much learning is turning thee mad." We live in different worlds and often seem insane to one another because we are at different levels of knowledge and experiences. The wise man often seems a fool to the witless man. Religion is peculiarly subject to being misunderstood as an empty dream of hallucination.

V. 25—"I am not mad, most excellent Festus; but speak forth words of truth and soberness." Paul's fine temper could stand the strain of the accusation and his wit was quick to furnish an apt reply. Paul was the man of sanity and Festus was the subject of delusion.

V. 26—"The king knoweth these things; none of these things is hidden from him." How delicately he complimented the Jew for knowing these things, "for he said, this hath not been done in a corner." The roots of Christianity are not hidden in tradition and myth but they are historical and lie exposed on the rock ledges of Judea.

V. 27-28—"King Agrippa, believeest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest." Agrippa felt the application of Paul's logic was getting him into close quarters and he was in no mood to be caught in its coils. So flippantly he answered, "Almost would thou make me a Christian."

V. 29—"And Paul said, I would to God that not thou only but also all that hear me this day, might become such as I am except these bonds." Paul meant what he said and his spirit of transparent sincerity affected all hearts. The king rose to retire, followed by the rest of the company.

1. What are some of the facts regarding human nature that a teacher of religious education needs to keep in mind?

It is generally conceded that as great or greater emphasis must be placed upon the person or persons taught than on the teaching material, the person taught has a definite human nature at the door of which he carries great impulses; the responses of these impulses can be modified; the native impulses vary in relative strength at different ages; there is a variety of ability, opportunity and experience which calls for a flexible program of instruction; human nature is akin to the divine and man has unique worth; human nature is intended for immortality; personality is endowed with the power to choose between better and worse.

2. What is the ultimate aim of religious education?

The ultimate aim of religious education should be:
(a) To guide the growing personality into experiences that will entail a progressive discovery of the deeper meaning of the world and of human nature.
(b) To guide the growing personality in the continuous process of reconstruction in which his ideals and standards of action for self and fellows must undergo, stage by stage of his development.

(c) To foster a consciousness of God and a loyalty to his will for its untold value as a motive in the right control of conduct.
(d) To help the growing personality to develop a resourcefulness of its own in the discovery of ways of putting his ideals and his loyalty to God into action.
(e) It might be summed up as helping the individual in his own continuous reconstruction and readjustment of his experiences, increasingly to understand, appreciate and participate in the Christian way of living fruitfully in the world. Principles of Religious Education.

The Better Way

THE RELIGION OF NATIONALISM

The vogue of superheated nationalism is attributed to the fact that the upper middle class has discovered in it an emotional substitute for Christianity. What is happening in America and elsewhere is a process of syncretism by which an ever diminishing element of Christianity and an everlasting element of nationalism is entering into the alloy known as modern religion.

The god of the new cult is the patria, the state, for whom the modern man will offer up his life. The ideal of the national state is a mighty, mystic power outside of pure individual men. It is the source of blessings for those who worship and obey. To propitiate and serve is the highest duty of man. The national state has a mission and its mission is everlasting.

The new religion has its rituals. The flag is supplanting the cross. The flag is the object of ceremonial salutes and dippings. Men bare their heads, children swear allegiance, adolescents orate and the grand old chiefs of the tribe lend an ear to the wisdom of babes and sucklings. The national Christmas of America comes on the Fourth of July.—Prof. H. D. Lasswell of the University of Chicago.

The Continental Church Society of England has furnished one of its missionaries in Australia with an airplane that he may cover more efficiently his territory which is as large as England. This missionary was a member of the English Air Force during the World War.

AMERICA'S FIRST THANKSGIVING DAY

The first expedition of Puritans arriving in Massachusetts December, 1620 planted their grain too early the following spring so that all was lost because of early frosts. They kept cheerful, though at starvation point, hoping that a shipload of provisions might come over from England. Weeks and months passed by and no ship could be sighted.

Finally one morning, someone spied a white sail in the distance and there was great rejoicing when the expected friends and provisions arrived.

The governor had the church bell rung and all the people, old and young, gathered together and gave thanks to God for sending food to them.

With great care, seed was planted the following spring which yielded a plentiful harvest and this is the basic fact for an annual American Thanksgiving day.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. How does Paul's trial compare with Christ before Pilate?
2. Where and how can we defend the honor of Christ today?
3. What are good points in the introduction to a sermon or any speech?

4. Why do men plead excuses for not entering the Christian life?

5. What are some of the chief visions of life? What is a heavenly vision?

6. Name other great men that were considered foolish or crazy.

7. How can we distinguish between mental hallucination and spiritual sanity?

CLERICUS SAYS "Blessed is the man who lives up to an enlightened conscience. We might have a good science and still be in the wrong, but we cannot have a good conscience and be hypocrites. Conscience may be educated; it must be guided and illuminated by the Holy Scriptures."

LESSON PRAYER

May we, dear Lord, in our study gain Paul's view of his life work as a stimulus for our own Christian work. Give to us a conscience void of offense—the most valuable possession any of us can have. And to each one of us give some heavenly vision and help us to obey it that more and more glorious visions may open before us.

BRITISH PILOT SETS NEW AIRPLANE SPEED RECORD

A British pilot, Flight-Lieutenant D'Arcy Greig, has attained the highest speed ever recorded by man, in his super-marine Napier plane at Calshot, England. He averaged 319 miles per hour in six test flights. In one flight he reached a speed of almost 350 miles an hour. At left, above, the plane is being towed to shore after making the record, and, right, Greig being greeted by an enthusiastic throng.

HOPE FOR RADIO VOCAL TRIUMPH

One of these young women may be chosen to represent the mid-west in the national Atwater Kent radio audition in New York, Dec. 16. They are winners of state contests who must first compete for the district championship at Chicago, Nov. 24, before going to New York. After hearing them sing over the radio those who have listened in mail their ballots to the judges and these votes count 60 per cent in deciding the winner. Among the contestants are the Misses Gladys Morrison Ball, of Kansas City, Mo.; Phyllis D. Nowak, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Grayce Lindgren, of Aberdeen, S. D.; Gertrude Schmitt, of Minneapolis, Minn., and Maria Matyas, of Chicago, Ill.

New Congresswoman "Literary Bad Boy"

There will be another woman member of congress next December in the person of Mrs. Ruth Pratt, of the so-called "silk stocking" district of New York—the Seventeenth district. Mrs. Pratt, Republican, of the Standard Oil Pratts, defeated her Democratic opponent, Philip Berelheimer, by a substantial majority.

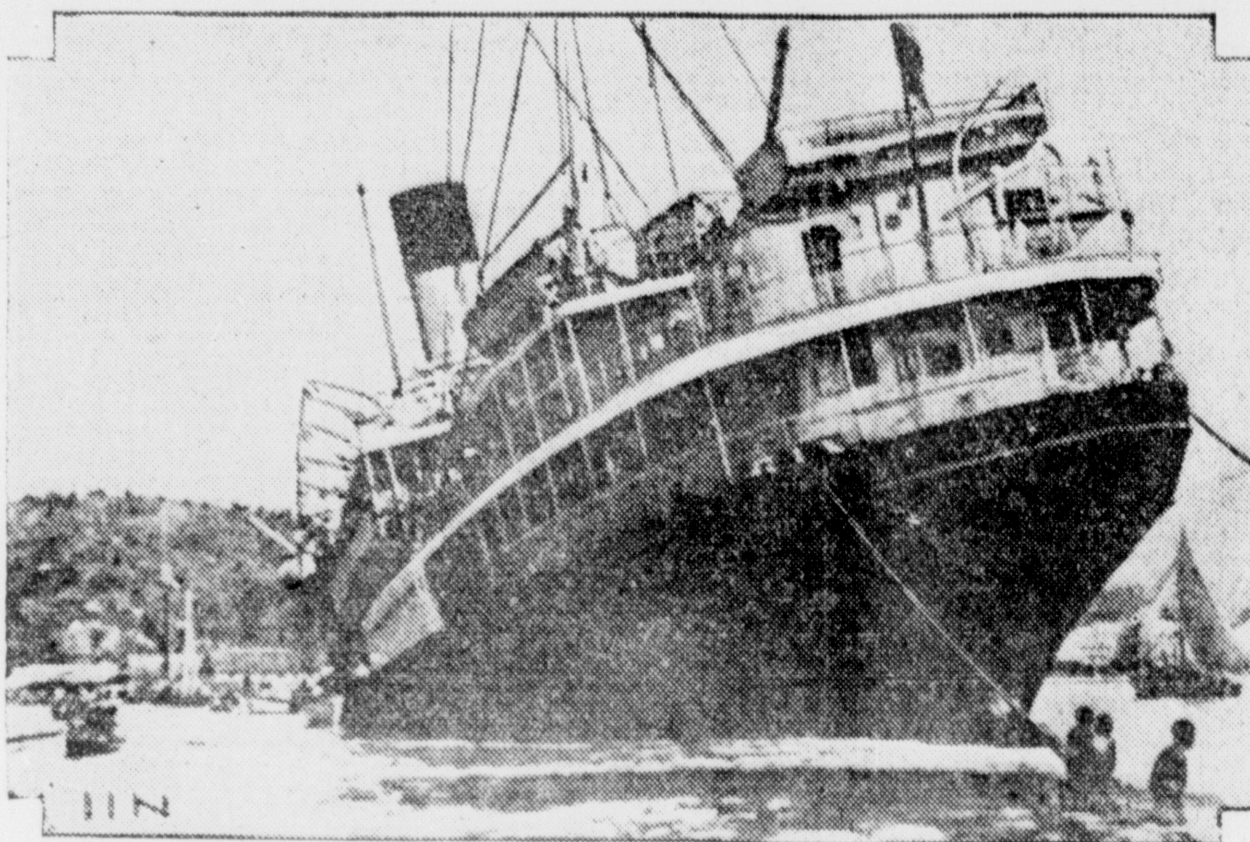

Here is a new and interesting study of George Bernard Shaw, famous Irish writer and publicist, whom many observers call the "bad boy of literature." It was made recently by a friend of the author.

Their Daddy's a Hero!

Mrs. Mary Cummings, of No. 3195 Hull ave., Brooklyn, and her two children, Ruth, four, and Schuyler, Jr., the proud family of Captain Schuyler Cummings, master of the American Shipper, which played a prominent role in Vestris rescue.

Was This a Prophetic Disaster!

One of the Dramatic Rescues

This photo taken from the S. S. Berlin shows a woman encircled by life preserver being maneuvered alongside ship preparatory to being taken aboard. Note the choppy sea which made rescue work perilous for all concerned.

Romance Curdled

Mrs. William A. Dunlap, the former Countess Campusano, who has instituted suit against her to hat millions and asks alimony sufficient for her to live on. Since her marriage, she informed court, Dunlap hasn't contributed enough to keep her in food and clothes.

Surgeon Senator

Although he has large interests in two hospitals and is a prominent surgeon, Dr. H. D. Hatfield, of Huntington, W. Va., expects to find time to devote himself to senatorial duties when the new congress is assembled at Washington. Hatfield, a Republican, was elected to the senate from his state over his Democratic opponent, M. M. Neely.

Charming Belgian

One of most popular members of capital's younger set is the Princess Antoinette de Ligne (above), daughter of the Belgian ambassador and Her Highness, the Princess Albert de Ligne.

THE MIGHTY MEN OF CARNEGIE TECH—HERE THEY ARE

Crushing all opposition, bringing disaster to Washington and Jefferson, to Pittsburgh, Georgetown and Notre Dame, the greatest team in Carnegie Tech history now stands as king of the conquered east. Carnegie's mighty men are led by Howard Harpster, peerless quarterback and captain, and Coach Wally Steffen, a judge in the Chicago, Ill., superior court, who, during the season, is able to be with his team only during the week-end games—but he does a great job of it.

WOMEN SUPPORT PEACE TREATY

Ten women's organizations forming the New York state committee on the Cause and Cure of War, are to hold a public meeting on Nov. 24, in New York, on Secretary Kellogg's multilateral peace treaty. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt will be one of the speakers. Heads of other organizations sponsoring the meeting are Mrs. Ella A. Boole, Brooklyn, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Miss Lena M. Phillips, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women; Miss Ruth Morgan, chairman of the peace committee of the National League of Women Voters; Mrs. Edgerton Parsons, of the American Association of University Women, and others.

JAMESTOWN GIRL PLAYS LEAD IN STAGE PLAY

A former Greene County resident, Miss Edna Torrence, a niece of Mrs. F. W. Ogan, Jamestown, takes one of the leading parts in "The Desert Song," stage success which is appearing in Ohio after a successful trans-continental run.

Miss Torrence, whose name in private life is Miss Edna McLaughlin, takes the part of the oriental dancer in the production and her performance is one of the outstanding hits of the show, according to those who have seen her.

Miss Torrence was reared near Jamestown and is well known in that vicinity. She appeared on the Keith circuit until two years ago when she was given an offer to appear with "The Desert Song." She travels with her mother, in her tour of the country.

Her brother, John McLaughlin is also on the stage. Mr. and Mrs. N. Hunter, Jamestown recently saw "The Desert Song" in Cincinnati and were with Miss Torrence after the performance. "The Desert Song" appears in Dayton in the near future.

EVANGELIST SHOWS
EVILS IN SERMON

"We don't see many people these days that are blessed by the church for few have spiritual warmth," said the Rev. Mr. Sharp, evangelist at the Church of the Nazarene, Thursday night. "Other traits of sin are talkativeness, fault-finding, deceitfulness, corruption and tyranny."

"We are sorry to say we see this condition existing in the churches all over the land today."

The evangelistic services are being held nightly. Harry Fagan, of Shelby, O., sings at each service. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Turkey—1,500 pounds of it—will head the Thanksgiving Day dinner menu for the 617 children at the O. S. and S. O. Home, according to Superintendent Charles V. Burton. Other delicacies will also be provided for the annual feast and the Home children will view a motion picture in the evening.

AUTOIST FINED

Found guilty of reckless driving in connection with an auto accident several weeks ago, J. E. Sherman was fined $10 and costs by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Thursday afternoon. A damage suit growing out of the same accident was settled in the court of R. O. Copey, Xenia Twp., justice of the peace, Thursday.

ALPHA

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Beaver Reformed Church held its all day meeting in the basement of the church last Thursday. About fifty women enjoyed the day, including the delicious dinner which was served at 12 o'clock. Comforts and dresses were made for poor people.

Several people went to Cedarville last Thursday night to witness the contests of the various high schools. The contest consisted of chorus, duet, quartette and solo musical work. Our high school made a good showing.

About 100 men and boys attended the Father's and Son's Banquet which was held at the K. of P. hall last night. The banquet was a huge success and we do not fear that in the future these banquets will be well patronized.

Mr. Rogers from Columbus was the week end guest of Dr. and Mrs. George Anderson, last week.

The Peavercreek Farm Bureau held an informal reception at the high school honoring the new county agent, Mr. E. A. Drake. After a bountiful buffet supper was enjoyed speeches were given by Mr. Ralph Wead and Mr. Drake.

Mrs. H. A. Shank who is ill at Miami Valley Hospital, is recuperating nicely.

About thirty guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stewart last Monday night. After an enjoyable evening ice cream, candy and cigars were served.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Clark spent the week end in Bellefontaine visiting friends.

Mr. C. A. Jacobs, who has been ill is greatly improved.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bradford drove to Columbus last Sunday where they visited relatives.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Going to the Metropolitan opera and the Paramount movie theater on successive nights convinces me that opera needs something from the movies and vice versa.

If opera had the movie's presentation ballets (this may sound absurd, but it is true) and if the movie could get some of the depth and real breath of life that the opera has—some of the divineness—then we may expect an evening's entertainment worth the price one has to pay on Broadway.

A promise of this is the hearing of grand opera stars in movietone. For example, Richard Bonelli's singing the opening of "Il Pagliaccio" is the best thing I've heard in singing or talking pictures.

At the opera, Richard Strauss' new opera was given its American premiere, "The Egyptian Helen." It is called, and tells an idyllic fairy-tale love story of Helen of Troy and Menelaus. New operas are so rare one would imagine the critics would receive them with acclaim. This one got all the raps a bad movie ought to get—and doesn't.

At that, I thought it lovely, excitedly sung by Marie Jeritta, or Strauss' native Vienna, and Editha Fleischer, an up and coming American. Rudolph Laubenthal, a German, likewise scored.

But the Metropolitan should go to Roxy's movie theater (not to Paramount, I must confess) to see what little and blithe ballets are like.

Musicians still are predicting that sound pictures can't last. Maybe, but the outlook is dismal. For example, the orchestra at the Strand—an orchestra of eighteen members—now plays only sixteen minutes a day. It still gets its old salary. But how long?

Roger Wolfe Kahn and his orchestra in a vitaphone short arouse a train of thought. What does

There are rumors of a trolley line from Cincinnati to Columbus with a connecting link from Wilmington to Xenia. It is said some of the biggest capitalists in the country are behind it.

It is understood that the Dayton and Xenia Traction Company has issued orders to the conductors of the line to refuse to carry any intoxicated person on the cars. When Xenia was "dry" before the patrons of the road were greatly annoyed by drunken men who went to Dayton to "tank up" on regular occasions.

The Thanksgiving season brought Greene County's marriage market up with a boom and within a little more than an hour today, six licenses were issued.

Roger Wolfe Kahn and his orchestra in a vitaphone short arouse a train of thought. What does

Roger's father, Otto Kahn, the big man of the Metropolitan opera and little theaters worth while think of his boy in the movies, following his playing at a night club? Well, I think: "Great! These Kahns are humans! Roger Wolfe may not be extraordinary, but anyway, he doesn't go in for any high-hatting. He ought to be turned loose at the Metropolitan to revolutionize that ponderous institution of grand opera."

Broadway has more bad pictures at $2 than any other street in the world.

COLUMBUS DOCTOR HEADS CONSULTING STAFF AT HOME HERE

therapy, the care of those confined to the hospital and the observation, immunization and preliminary care of all new students as they are admitted to the Home.

The construction will be of concrete and steel, fireproof throughout, with a red brick exterior, stone trim, slate roof and white wood cornice and an attractive portico. The floors will be terrazo, the interior walls plastered except in the service rooms where tile will be used. The plan with its four large wards, its dietary wing and operating wing with the medical and staff offices in the center gives maximum ease of operation and supervision.

Two cottages will represent a total expenditure of approximately $75,000. These, too, will be of fireproof construction and the red brick walls with white trim will give the cheery, homelike atmosphere obtainable in the Colonial style. These buildings will hold opposite positions on the campus and have been designed to help bridge the gap between a condition of little responsibility and the institution atmosphere to that one of much responsibility with homelike possibilities for members of the graduating class.

Of all the ones represented at the Home, the one most in need of this care and attention is that of the boys and girls who are about to graduate, according to Superintendent Charles V. Burton. The students of this age must gain some knowledge of the problems of life that they are soon to meet, he says.

Each of the cottages is designed to hold up to the incoming classes a goal to be reached, and having been reached, places them in an important position, the elders of the Home. Properly directed, those living in these homes could be used, it is explained, to direct all student activities, thereby creating qualities of leadership among the boys and girls themselves.

The "women's building" is designed to accommodate two groups of eleven girls each, with their instructor. The cottage is so planned that all of the normal home functions can be taught. Each family will have a large living room, dining room, kitchen, and open porch on the first floor, the laundry in the basement and the bedrooms and baths on the second floor.

The "men's hall" likewise has been designed with the idea of developing in the minds of the boys who live there, the feeling that they have now attained manhood, that they have, therefore, certain work to do and certain responsibilities and cares to assume. The building will care for thirty-five students and an instructor on each floor.

It has a large living room and sun room on the first floor, with living quarters at each end and on the second floor. These rooms will give private accommodations for each boy and teach the individual the importance of personal care and interest in the Home. It is thought that this building may be used to house the cadet officers or other students showing special fitness in the matter of self-government. All three buildings were designed in the office of Robert S. Harsh and Associates, Inc., 122 E. Broad St., Columbus, O.

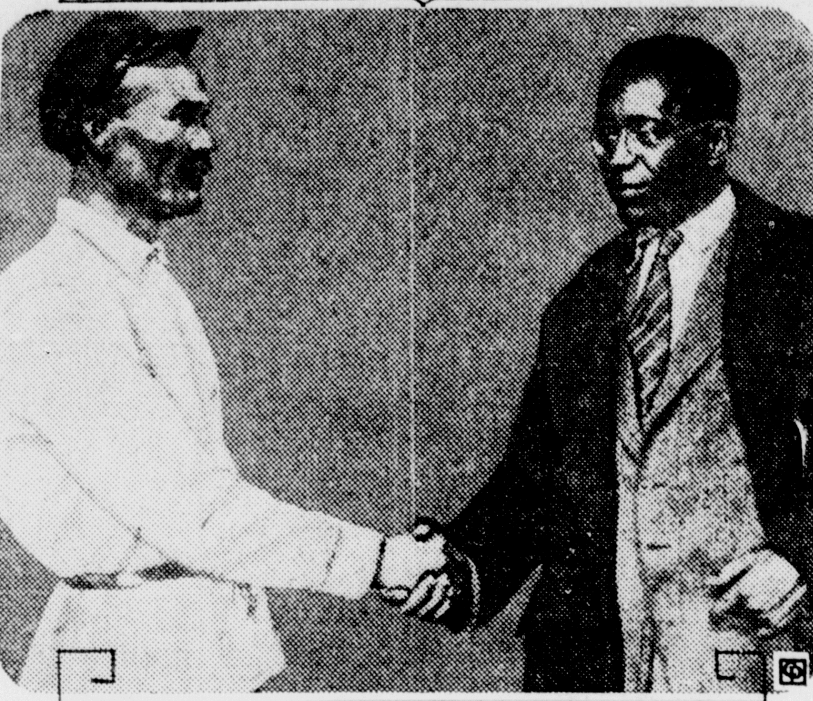

Covers were laid for thirty-one guests at the annual banquet which concluded the session in the afternoon. Dr. Greive, retiring dean of the staff, presided and introduced Superintendent Burton who gave the welcoming speech and explained what has been accomplished and future plans for the institution. He declared that officials of the Home have a "mission" and not merely a "job" at the institution.

R. D. Williamson, Greene County's representative in the Ohio House of Representatives and chairman of the House finance committee also spoke, assuring the medical staff of continued financial support of the Home. He declared the state stands "squarely behind" the institution.

Superintendent Burton was paid a high compliment for betterments which have taken place since he assumed charge in a talk by Dr. Messenger, secretary of the staff. The menu for the banquet consisted of shrimp cocktail, cheese sticks, turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, peas, cranberries, olives, biscuits, lemon ice, head lettuce salad with thousand island dressing, date pudding with whipped cream, coffee and nuts.

Covers were laid for the following guests: Superintendent and Mrs. Charles V. Burton, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Williamson, Xenia; Robert S. Harsh, Columbus; Mrs. Alice G. Eavey, Xenia; Dr. and Mrs. Fred D. Wollard, Washington, C. H.; Philip W. Frame, Xenia; Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Messenger, Xenia; Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Messenger, Xenia; Dr. Walter M. Simpson, Dayton; Dr. John E. Greive, Cincinnati; Dr. H. H. A Substitute for Dieting

ARTICULAR people do frown on those who "pick and choose" at the table. A "diet" is often embarrassing and always a hardship. And nine times out of ten it is unnecessary!

Try this simple experiment: see if that "indigestion" doesn't disappear from the very hour you first take Pape's Diapiesin. To restore good digestion just eliminate excess acid. A tablet of "Pape's Diapiesin" after eating or when pain is felt will instantly neutralize the acidity and banish all digestive trouble and pain.

So, do buy a 60-cent package of "Pape's Diapiesin" today. This not only means instant relief, but by soothing, healing and strengthening your weak and disordered stomach a little "Pape's Diapiesin" keeps your digestive system healthy and helps to prevent various disorders. You may have decided that nothing could give you a "strong" stomach; just make the diapiesin test!

therapy, the care of those confined to the hospital and the observation, immunization and preliminary care of all new students as they are admitted to the Home.

The construction will be of concrete and steel, fireproof throughout, with a red brick exterior, stone trim, slate roof and white wood cornice and an attractive portico. The floors will be terrazo, the interior walls plastered except in the service rooms where tile will be used. The plan with its four large wards, its dietary wing and operating wing with the medical and staff offices in the center gives maximum ease of operation and supervision.

Two cottages will represent a total expenditure of approximately $75,000. These, too, will be of fireproof construction and the red brick walls with white trim will give the cheery, homelike atmosphere obtainable in the Colonial style. These buildings will hold opposite positions on the campus and have been designed to help bridge the gap between a condition of little responsibility and the institution atmosphere to that of one of much responsibility with homelike possibilities for members of the graduating class.

Of all the ages represented at the Home, the one most in need of this care and attention is that of the boys and girls who are about to graduate, according to Superintendent dent Charles V. Burton. The students of this age must gain some knowledge of the problems of life that they are soon to meet, he says.

U. S. COMMUNIST VISITS IN RUSSIA

Each of the cottages is designed to hold up to the incoming classes a goal to be reached, and having been reached, places them in an important position, the elders of the Home. Properly directed, those living in these homes could be used, it is explained, to direct all student activities, thereby creating qualities of leadership among the boys and girls themselves.

The "women's building" is designed to accommodate two groups of eleven girls each, with their instructor. The cottage is so planned that all of the normal home functions can be taught. Each family will have a large living room, dining room, kitchen, and open porch on the first floor, the laundry in the basement and the bedrooms and baths on the second floor.

The "men's hall" likewise has been designed with the idea of developing in the minds of the boys who live there, the feeling that they have now attained manhood, that they have, therefore, certain work to do and certain responsibilities and cares to assume. The building will care for thirty-five students and an instructor on each floor.

It has a large living room and sun room on the first floor, with living quarters at each end and on the second floor. These rooms will give private accommodations for each boy and teach the individual the importance of personal care and interest in the Home. It is thought that this building may be used to house the cadet officers or other students showing special fitness in the matter of self-government. All three buildings were designed in the office of Robert S. Harsh and Associates, Inc., 122 E. Broad St., Columbus, O.

Covers were laid for thirty-one guests at the annual banquet which concluded the session in the afternoon.

Dr. Greife, retiring dean of the staff, presided and introduced Superintendent Burton, who gave the welcoming speech and explained what has been accomplished and future plans for the institution. He declared that officials of the Home have a "mission" and not merely a "job" at the institution.
